“He who dares not grasp the thorns should never crave
the rose.”

—Emily Bronte

In 1984, Jerry Gristina hand-planted the first vines for what would become in sixteen short years, an award-winning vineyard. One that was conceived with a vision, born out of passion, and nurtured in quality. Today, Gristina's whites, reds, and rosés are prized for their subtle sophistication and mature body.

Now we are enhancing the tradition so well established by the Gristina family. Galluccio Estate Vineyards / Gristina wines is becoming the jewel of the North Fork premium wine growing region. We have great people who make great wines, which I personally guarantee you will enjoy. — Jerry Gristina

ROSS INSTITUTE CALENDAR OF EVENTS

Workshop: Astanga Yoga Beryl Bender-Birch & Thom Birch

Beryl and Thom live on the South Fork, but their practice and teaching of Yoga Chikitsa, along with Beryl's bestsellers Power Yoga and Beyond Power Yoga have won them an international reputation. Join them in a series of traditional postures that combines ujjayi breathing with the classical practice of the asanas. It's a discipline that is guaranteed to increase energy, reduce tightness and promote agility of both body and mind. 8:30-11am $35

21

Workshop: Spiritual Eldering® Steffi L. Shapiro, L.I.C.S.W.

With the lengthening of the human lifespan, the need for an "extended consciousness" is more pressing than ever before. Such a consciousness brings lives into balance at all levels—body, mind and spirit—to create "quality of life" at every age. Steffi Shapiro draws on From Age-ing to Sage-ing to shatter the limits of age-ism as she demonstrates the joys of life review and repair. The result is a powerful vision of "modern maturity" sure to lift the spirits of all ages. 3-5pm $10

22

Workshop: Middle Eastern Dance Shamira Shahinian

Shamira's August workshop at the Center was, quite simply, a smash. Now she's back by popular demand for the first of a series of workshops designed to unlock the magic and mystery of true feminine energy. Stretch leggings, tank tops, leotards, flowing skirts or any comfortable clothing may be worn and no previous experience is necessary.

Come enjoy the spirited workout that everyone's talking about. (for women only) 4-6pm $30

26

Concert: Faculty Artist Series

An evening of music and theatre performed by the Ross School's Performing Arts Faculty. Featured works include: "Chicks," a one-act comedy by Grace McKearney and Johann Nepomuk Hummel's "Septet in D minor." 7:30pm Free

28

Workshop: The Natural Singer Claude Stein

It's time to come out of the shower. Gold record producer Claude Stein has coached major-label recording artists. He now brings supportive coaching and group exercises to the Center for a workshop on how even the most vocally-challenged can use the power of singing to reach personal and creative breakthroughs. (Note the lyrics to a favorite song in advance. Sheet music or a recording is helpful, but not necessary.) 10am-5pm $150

Lecture: Myth & Ritual of the Olympic Games Dr. John MacAloon

With the majesty of Sydney 2000 still in the air, Professor John MacAloon visits from the University of Chicago to contemplate the rich history and symbolism of the Olympics. In both classical and contemporary incarnations, the Games of the Olympiad have provided a sacred space in which conflict and warfare have been set aside for pursuit of the highest human ideals. Dr. MacAloon is without question the preeminent scholar of the Olympic movement and his remarks are not to be missed. 7-9pm $10

For more information or to register for these events, contact Carol Capelletti by phone at 631/907-5163 or by email at events@ross.org.

END OF SEASON SALE

Bought your pillows & comforters elsewhere? Guaranteed you overpaid!!!

CAVEAT EMPTOR (BUYER BEWARE)

Don't be misled by advertisements for European goose down comforters at supposedly "SALE PRICES". We'll show you that most of those ads do not represent good values at all. Just because these advertisements are from major departments stores - do not be fooled-all down is not alike.

The quality of goose down is measured in fill power (also known as loft). Fill Power is the amount of cubic inches one ounce of down will fill. Our 800 plus Siberian Goose Down will fill between 800 and 850 cubic inches of space. "The Company Store" catalog always lists the fill power of their goose down. Bring in their catalog and we'll generally save you 50% off their prices.

Goose Down Comforters are an investment, with proper care a fine quality comforter will last a life time. Our high quality 100% cotton shells, or tickings, are divided into baffle boxes. The baffle box has a mesh channel separating the top from the bottom of the comforter. The baffle allows the down to give you maximum loft without collecting in one section of the comforter. We do not cater to the consumer that is more interested in price than quality. Our most valuable asset is our customer. We will only sell a product that we believe to be the highest value at the best price. Cheap low quality down should fill garage cans not pillows and comforters. All our goose down pillows and comforters contain 100% goose down even though it is legal to combine 70% down and 30% feathers and label the item 100% goose down. Remember feathers are those things with quills, down is similar to tiny balls of cotton, absolutely no hard quill. Our goose down comforters and pillows are machine washable because they only contain down.

The larger the individual down cluster the higher the fill power. The higher the fill power the better the comforter will insulate thus providing more comfort to you. Since you are spending 1/3 of your life in bed it should be as luxurious as possible. - Why not?

How Far Do Dan's Papers Travel?

Entries In $50 Contest Come From China, Tibet, Peru, Egypt, Tasmania, Etc.

Readers From Remsenburg Aboard A Cruise Ship Trying To Take A Copy Of Dan's Papers To The South Pole Get Stuck In An Ice Floe And Have To Be Rescued By The Argentine Navy

By Dan Rattiner

Every year in the autumn, Dan's Papers puts a small one inch ad in its pages, offering a fifty dollar prize to the person who could take the dateline of the paper with them on a trip and mail it back to us from the farthest point on the planet. This year marks the twenty-fifth consecutive year that we have done this.

The contest was originally inspired all those years ago by my driving along the Rue des Alpes through the South of France and passing a BP gas station that had in it a teenager with a cigarette dangling from his mouth pumping gasoline and wearing a Dan's Papers T-shirt. I went roaring by, screeched to a stop, went back and asked him where he had gotten it.

He just shrugged. He spoke no English. He had no idea what I was talking about.

Over the years we've had entries from all over but never have there been so many as this year. The contest ended September 1, 2000, with the new one beginning that date. Fifty dollars isn't very much. And it is astonishing to what lengths people go to try and win this annual award. Of course, every year people take the paper to places not very far away and think they might win. For example, this year Marie Brown of Baldwin, New York, took the paper all the way into Manhattan where she tore off the dateline of page four and mailed it back. Similar nearby adventures came from Claude and Opal Pafander who tried Apache Junction, Arizona, Jeff Schneider who sent one in from Chicago and Marion Wannamaker who sent us one from her winter home in Palm Bay, Florida.

One of the odder entries along these lines came from Jeffrey Pagliaroli who mailed us a dateline and a blank check that he had ripped out of his check book that bore his address in Seattle, Antarctica, were surrounded by sheets of ice after a sudden change in the wind direction, the Argentine Navy said in a statement. "The situation does not yet pose an imminent threat to the people onboard," the statement added.

Among those on board were Don and Yvonne Elliman from Remsenburg who had with them a copy of Dan's Papers they were hoping to take to the South Pole. Among the things that they did after being trapped in the ice for four days was post their entry from Tierra Del Feugo, Argentina. It contains a postmark from Antarctica.

"You can't get no farther 'way than this!" Yvonne wrote. "Even if you start up the other side. The only catch is trying to find a post office. We're looking forward to working with you again on the Art Auction for the Westhampton Beach Performing Art Center. Happy 2000."

The truth was however, and I had to be very hard about this considering all of the entries, that the Ellimans' letter had not exactly followed the rules. Don Elliman had written a postscript to the letter which read, "Had to bring this letter and cover home after it was stamped and cancelled as we were told it might be many years before it could get off the Argentine station."

In other words the entry came from Remsenburg. In addition, there were other people who went to

"So even across the ocean in Norway, Dan's Papers is a helpful reference."

Washington. He had written the word VOID across it.

There were other adventurers who sent us entries – in what I will refer to as the Domestic Division – from as far away as Hawaii. There were eight from Hawaii.

Next comes the International Division. One entry we received had in it a news clipping from Argentina that read as follows:

Dateline Buenos Aires: The Argentine Navy despatched an ice-cutter Monday to help free a ship with 186 people trapped in icy waters off Antarctica. The Clipper Adventurer tourist vessel, traveling through the Belgrano and Liar Islands near

South O' the Highway (and North, too)

One of the more interesting movies at the Film Festival this weekend is Dinner Rush, starring Danny Aiello, Sandra Bernhard, and Summer Phoenix. Summer Phoenix and Danny Aiello may be here this weekend, Sandra Bernhard probably not, she's never liked the place, she said. Dinner Rush is Bob Giraldi's first feature. He's done commercials and much of the film has been shot at Gigino's, the restaurant he owns in the Village.

Among those who will also be on hand this weekend are Ed Harris and Danny Baldwin who will probably stay at his brother Alec's place in Amagansett. Amy Madigan is expected, Anne Heche is expected to be a no show.

Among those Hamptonites roasting Rob Reiner at the New York Hilton last week were Dr. Ruth Westheimer, Al Franken, Richard Dreyfuss, Patty Hearst, and Freddie Roman. The roast will be seen on Comedy Central November 1.

The newest Hamptonite is Jonathan Tisch of the Loew's Hotel chain who spent $10 million for a six bedroom home in East Hampton. The house owned by Michael and Susan Sokol was not for sale, but then they got this offer they couldn't refuse.

The Friends of AKIM USA are holding a Golden Jubilee Gala honoring Martin Greenfield at the Plaza Sunday October 29.

CORRECTION:

Winter, which was scheduled to begin on December 21 of this year, actually began on the morning of Tuesday, October 10. I believe this was the earliest in memory that snow has ever fallen in the Hamptons.

The beginning came about 8:45 in the morning when a huge black cloud appeared to the northwest of the Hamptons, apparently coming in from Connecticut. In minutes, the sky darkened, and pellets of white slush patted down onto the farmland of Sagaponack. At the cut where Sag Pond empties into the ocean, which is where I was, the snow, for that is what it was, settled on the sand and was thick enough to push into snowballs and throw. I personally threw a snowball at a group of seagulls twenty feet away at 8:50 a.m. that morning, hitting one, much to his surprise. I threw two other snowballs, one at my four wheel drive truck and one at my dog. I missed the dog, hit the car.

Temperature at that hour was 39 degrees according to the digital readout on my dashboard. The black cloud and its attendant snow whipped through and out to sea at 8:55 and made a dour sight for the next fifteen minutes over the ocean, slowly passing off to the horizon, heading in a southwesterly direction. Next stop, the Bahamas.

Antarctica. Just ten days before the Adventurer had gotten trapped in the ice – this was on January 17, 2000 – a much larger cruise ship bearing 800 people and a copy of Dan's Papers steamed by on its way through the Straights of Antarctica. The photo at the top of this article, which shows a copy of Dan's Papers held by Diane and Jerry Bedrin with penguins in the background, was taken on either Half Moon Island or Livingston Island. The Bedrins did not know for sure, because they disembarked and took pictures from both places, they said. And they too had trouble finding a post office and wound up sending us the entry from, get this, Paterson, New Jersey. (They also have a home in Amagansett.)

"Other than the moon," the Bedrins wrote us, "I can't imagine going much further. To get to Antarctica we flew from New York to Buenos Aires twelve hours, then changed airports and flew four hours to Ushuaia, the southern tip of Argentina. Then, along with Robert Kennedy Jr., Dan Ackroyd, Art Garfunkel and about 800 others, we went on an ocean liner for a journey through Drakes Passage, the roughest waters in the world. We endured twenty-five foot seas, where the Atlantic meets the Pacific finally we spotted icebergs ad land. There are no signs in Antarctica, no hotels, no landmarks for pictures. Believe me, we were there, in fact enclosed is a shot of the penguins to show you just how cute they are! We had a wonderful trip and we are glad to have remembered our Dan's Papers."

So the truth is they didn't follow the rules either.

In fact, probably because there are no post offices in Antarctica, the farthest away from Bridgehampton is almost invariably in Australia, because if you drill a hole straight down from Bridgehampton, you will come up in the Indian Ocean, and the nearest landfall will be in the resort town of Augusta, Australia, which is at the tip of a peninsula south of Perth.

Only four times in twenty five years have we had entries from Augusta, which is eerily like the Hamptons, with vineyards and wineries, potato crops, beaches and surfers and indeed we had one this year from Augusta, more about which later.

In the meantime, let me tell you about other amazing places from which people sent us entries. Mr and Mrs. Herbert Mayer, of Ft. Lee, New Jersey sent us an entry from Papeete, the capital of Tahiti.

"Usually I read your paper when I am at my house in Southampton," wrote Gengina Nemiceh. "This time I am sending it from Egypt."

She enclosed a postcard showing carvings from Sakkara, the tomb of Mer Roka.

"I hope Norway is the farthest point from Bridgehampton," wrote Darlene Kalleland. "I live in Vormedal, Norway, but travel back to Long Island every year and always pick up your newspaper because of its newsy and good contents. Next month I will be back again, this time to a wedding, which be held in Southampton, thanks to Dan's Papers. I saw an ad for a house to rent at this time and have reserved it. So even across the ocean in Norway, Dan's Papers is still a helpful resource."

"We are in Cuzco, Peru, pretty far away from the Candy Kitchen," wrote Muriel and Marvin Bernstein of Bridgehampton. "Please note that we are also quite high in the Andes, over 12,000 feet. Hope this wins your contest. FAR – AND HIGH!"

Bill and Debbie Wilson sent an entry from Chang

NOTICE

$1,000 REWARD

On Friday, August 25, between 6 and 8 p.m., our cat Lucy disappeared from around Lamb Ave. and Edgewood in Quogue. An intensive search of the neighborhood revealed no clues to her whereabouts whatsoever.

Lucy is a completely white, 6-year-old shorthair with greenish-blue eyes, weighing about 9 pounds. She is very clean and healthy, and is also self-confident and very friendly.

WE WANT HER BACK!

This cat is an important member of our family. We are heartbroken and devastated by this.

If you have any information as to Lucy's whereabouts, or if you know of anyone who has recently added a beautiful white cat to their family, please call us. We will pay for her return or any information that leads us to her.

Cell Phone Horror

County Passes Law Making It Illegal To Hold Phone To Your Ear While Driving

Severe Economic Impact On The Hamptons Possible If Masters-Of-The-Universe Can't Have Their Toys

By Dan Rattiner

So I am sitting on the Hampton Jitney as it pulls out of Bridgehampton for New York and across the aisle is a beautiful young Asian woman. She takes out a cell phone, punches some numbers in and holds it to her ear. A call to her suite at the Plaza, perhaps?

"I'm not sure I should come into the City," she says. "I feel like I'm gonna barf."

Mounted on a glass panel at the front of the bus, there is a red, white and black sticker that has a drawing of an alligator eating a cell phone. Under it are the words PHONE USAGE LIMITED TO 3 MINUTES PER TRIP. She's used about ten seconds.

Ten minutes later, we pull into stop in Southampton. She stands up. She's going to get off the bus. I'm thinking, I hope she doesn't fire away on the top of my head. "Feel better," I say as a sort of an encouragement. She looks at me funny. What? Am I trying to pick her up?

People really don't get that other people can hear them when they talk on the cell phone. When phones first came out and I noticed this phenomenon, I thought it was because of the technology. There was a lot of static on those early analog phones.

But now we have digital phones, the voice comes in fine and there is no reason to shout.

Yet cell phone people still talk too loud. Is it that the cell phone is so small you have to shout at it?

On this same Hampton Jitney, just in back of me, two people are talking animatedly about something to one another and I haven't a clue. Their voices are modulated so that I, three feet away, cannot hear them. They do this instinctively. They can't seem to do this with cell phones.

Because of these problems, cell phones are now banned in many places, including delis, busses, down a number with the other, and then open your appointment book with a third to see if you are free. Yaaaaaah!!

Fred? Are you there, Fred?

A few small towns banned the practice. Brooklyn Heights, Ohio is one. Then Verizon, the wireless service, broke ranks from the other wireless companies to announce their support for a proposed ban in the City of Chicago. Verizon's flip-flop was a breakthrough.

Last week Suffolk County passed a bill to ban them. The proposed law will take effect on January 1, if it is signed by the county executive, and will allow you to talk to a speaker-microphone on your dashboard, or a headphone set around your head, but you can't hold a phone up to your ear.

I puzzled a long time about why cell phones in cars are different from, say, a loud argument you have with the person in the passenger's seat. Or theatres, libraries, airplanes and hospitals. Though in hospitals and airplanes, it's because a cell phone call can kill somebody in a critical moment during a delicate procedure by making a machine go berserk, or at least so they say.

I puzzled a long time about why cell phones in cars are different from, say, a loud argument with the person in the passengers seat.

About a year ago, the authorities began to look into the problems associated with using a cell phone while driving a car. You hold the cell phone up to your ear with one hand, get a pen to write a loud Rolling Stones song that gets you thumping on the outside of your car door with your palm. I've concluded that with the Rolling Stones the experience is I'm driving in my car, the wind in my hair, and I'm listening to the Rolling Stones. It's a full experience. With the cell phone, in your ear, it's all going on in your head. Everything else gets tuned out.

Al McGuire, a star basketball player for the New York Knicks years ago, successfully argued in court that you couldn't eat junk food at the same time as driving a car. He said the Big Mac, shake and fries on his lap were too distracting and that's why he had got into the accident. The jury bought it. And the Junk Food Defense is still in use today.

You can also make a case that cell phones have been the cause of the dramatic decline in crime in our cities. People walk along the sidewalk talking into them. What's a mugger to do? He approaches one and demands their money and they just keep on walking. How embarrassing. Frankly, I think that if the Suffolk County executive signs the bill into law it will have a considerable impact on business in the Hamptons. Fewer people will come out here. The reason is practically everybody from New York talks on a cell phone while driving out. It's a ritual. And here in the Hamptons, it's part of the expectation that they are about to arrive. On Friday afternoon in the summertime, the ground shakes and the cell phone service starts to flicker and dim. Then it goes out entirely. The city people are sucking up the entire bandwidth. And they continue to suck it up until every last one of them has informed everybody else that they have indeed arrived and they are here and everything is okay. This is about seven p.m. Then the service flickers back on and its okay until Sunday afternoon when they go home and it does it again for two hours.

Of course, if they pass the law, some New Yorkers will flaunt it by getting cell phone implants in the back of their necks. Ther plastic surgeons will do them. It will become a fashion. You'll see them driving along, a glazed look in their eyes, babbling away loudly at nothingness.

You tell them that it's eighty million and not a penny less. Tell them I can get a better offer from the Japanese.

* * *

Of course, there is a proper use for cell phones. I was having dinner at an expensive restaurant with banker Wilbur Ross when we both became aware of the fact that it was taking too long for a waiter to come over to take our order.

Ross took out a cell phone and very discreetly called the restaurant. He got the maitre d', described our predicament and pinpointed our location which was two guys in suits in front of the fireplace. They had a waiter there in less than ten seconds.

The Hamptons: Founded 1639

Institutions Created Here By The British Crown Long Ago Are Being Challenged

By Dan Rattiner

Robert David Lion Gardiner was at a meeting in East Hampton Town Hall the other day. Gardiner, who is a vigorous 89 years old, divides his time between East Hampton, Palm Beach and Manhattan, and is also the direct descendant of the original Lion Gardiner, the first Englishman to set foot in what is now New York State. This was in 1639.

Gardiner was in Town Hall at his own request, to meet with Town Supervisor Jay Schneiderman, about what is to become of his family's 4,000 acre private island off the coast of Amagansett. Gardiner, for many years, referred to himself as the 16th Lord of the Manor, since Gardiner's Island has a great manor house on a hill on the island overlooking the sea in every direction. But in recent years, it turned out that there was another claimant to the island, Robert Gardiner's niece, Alexandra. And so she was invited to the meeting too, along with her two sons, her husband Robert Goelet, and their lawyer Arthur Field. Gardiner has no heirs.

Gardiner and the Goelets sat across from one another. Many lawsuits are pending between them, including not only whether Alexandra has a direct inheritance to the island, and who should pay for the upkeep of the island, but also whether the island should be sold or not. Gardiner is suing to sell the island, with provisions it never be built upon. The Goelets are opposing any sale. They will take care of its future and see to it that it is not built upon, they say. But they also want to keep the current five-acre zoning, which means 2,000 houses could some day be built there.

The meeting was inconclusive. Gardiner wants the island to be designated as a State Historic District, and the Town said they would look into property that overlooks Gardiner's Island that has given me an idea.

There is, in East Hampton, a group called the Town Trustees, which until the Revolution, made the laws in the town, under the jurisdiction of King George III. The Trustees don't go back quite as far as Lion Gardiner goes back. But it is far enough. The Trustees were empowered in 1686 by an edict from the King known as the Dongan Patent. Among other things, it gives the citizenry the right to clam and fish local waters without tax or fee paid, and it gives the Trustees the right to own land in common for the citizenry and to do with the land what they want for the public good.

Stuart Vorpahl, who is a long-time trustee, carries a copy of the Dongan Patent with him when he goes out fishing in his boat. He refuses to buy a State Fishing Licence. And once last year when the Harbor Police gave him a ticket, he took it to local town court. This ticket is relevant to the Amagansett legal matter I will shortly be talking about.

(Gardiner too, has at one time or another, carried around the piece of paper that the King wrote to deed property to his ancestor. Once, he told me, he was at a closing for his Gardiner's Bay Shopping Center in Bay Shore and the lawyer for one of his

it. The Goelets oppose the plan saying it would diminish the value of the property which it would, and they then repeated their claim that they will take care of seeing to it that the island is never built upon and they have the financial means to do it. Town Supervisor Schneiderman said he did not want to get the Town entangled in any of the lawsuits pending between the parties.

On the same day this meeting was going on, there was another event in Town Hall, the filing of some legal papers about some Amagansett waterfront future tenants — on a 99 year lease — asked for a title search. Gardiner unrolled the deed from the King, not a copy, but the original.)

The Amagansett court papers have been filed by some city people named Jonathan Glynn and Vanessa Gernes, naming as the defendants the East Hampton Town Trustees. They are attempting to throw out the legality of the entire Trustee system saying they are not a legal entity created by the United States of America. As a result, they feel they are the rightful owners of some land that the Trustees in fact own.

The story of this lawsuit is of considerable interest. Glynn and Gernes last fall went into contract to purchase a bayfront house in Lazy Point (Amagansett) that overlooks Gardiner's Island two miles off shore. The house has been in the Ruscito family for many years, and is presently owned by Joseph Ruscito as a summer home. Ruscito is a Manhattan attorney and he knows all about the rules of the house, which there is no dispute that he explained to Glynn and Gernes.

The house is one of 49 houses on the arc of the Bay that are on Trustee owned land. And so when you buy the house, you buy the house, you don't get the land under it. Instead, you get title to the 99 year lease, subject to annual review. No one has ever not passed the annual review.

Most of these houses were built in the 1890s, originally just fishing shanties, out of wooden lollypop boxes, according to Stuart Vorpahl, who was for a long time one of the Trustees. When one family wanted to move out and give up the house, the Trustees would meet, bids from different people put into a hat and one of them pulled out. Whatever the bid was, whether $300 or $3,000 annually, that's how much the new family would pay for the lease and the house, even if there were a bid in the hat with a higher amount on it. Beginning in 1988, the leases and houses were sold simply to the highest bidder. The only stipulation was that you had to have been a resident of East Hampton for at least six months. Of course you had to pay your share of the Town Taxes on the land — yes, the Trustees paid real estate taxes — and maintain an insurance policy, but that was never a problem. This 1988 system is in use today. With the current white hot real estate market, houses and leases are bringing quite a bit of money.

In any case, Joe Ruscito went into contract with Glynn and Gernes in March, with the provision that they could move in and stay there until the sale on April 20. Glynn and Gernes did move in, but then, during the week just before the sale when Glynn and Gernes were not there, Ruscito came and changed the locks. He said they were renovating the interior without his permission. He was cancelling the sale.

Glynn and Gernes' lawsuit, which is also against Ruscito of course, claims that the sale must be allowed to proceed and furthermore the land under the house belongs to them too. The basis for this claim has to do with Stuart Vorpahl's Dongan Patent fishing "permit." Vorpahl had gone to court last year to try to get the fishing-without-a-licence ticket thrown out. He was going to base his defense on the fact that he had the Dongan Patent with him. But the local judge ruled that the Dongan Patent could not be introduced as evidence in his courtroom. He did not have jurisdiction over the Trustees. And thus Vorpahl's ticket remained. Vorpahl is appealing.

Glynn and Gernes are making the claim that if the Donegan Patent is not recognized by a local court, then it is not a legal document. And now, since their contract to buy the place must be declared legal, they now own both the house and the land.

It is a lame argument in my view. And the Trustees have been challenged before and have always won. They can't help it if the laws of America did not apply when they were chartered. The laws of the British Empire applied. And they were followed. In my opinion, the case will be thrown out, though Glynn and Gernes will likely get their deposit back.

In any case, I am thinking, why don't Gardiner and the Goelets sell Gardiner's Island to the East Hampton Trustees for $1? The Trustees, who already own and administer decisions regarding the bay bottoms, the shorelines and certain pieces of land they have retained over 300 years, would surely know how to take care of Gardiner's Island, the oldest privately owned island in America. The Island and the Trustees are of the same vintage. And the Trustee's mandate (from the King) is to retain these properties "for the public good." The "Historic District" designation, proposed by Gardiner, really isn't that strong a thing.

It is interesting to remember some of the history of Robert Gardiner and Alexandra Goelet. Twenty-five years ago, when Gardiner was a younger, stronger man unchallenged by the Goelets, he became incensed by a proposal put forward at that time by the Congressman from this district, Otis Pike, suggesting that the Federal Government buy Gardiner's Island to keep it from ever being developed. Gardiner felt his stewardship was being challenged. He was up for the challenge. And he challenged Pike for Pike's seat in Congress, holding a series of debates in high school auditoriums in the area with Pike which basically consisted of Gardiner regalling Pike for having the audacity to make this proposal. It also included, in endlessly boring detail, every bit of history of the Island, told over and over and over. Gardiner only got seven percent of the vote. But he had made his point. Pike's proposal was withdrawn.

When Alexandra Goulet made her claim to the island twenty years ago, people looked into just who she and her husband were. Turned out they were well-to-do City residents with a considerable heritage. Robert Goelet was Chairman of the Board of the New-York Historical Society, a public institution with a museum on Central Park that just about nobody heard of. Turned out the New-York Historical Society had immense numbers of treasures — it was sort of the city's attic — but under Goelet's chairmanship the place was a falling down establishment of peeling paint, open to the Board and its friends who, some said, ran it like a private club, with only occasional forays inside permitted for research scholars. When it was also learned that many of the museum's treasures were moldy and stored in wet basements with much of it in ruin, it became a major scandal for the city. The mayor stepped in, the governor took over, and in the end the Board was thrown out, and a new Board of Directors appointed which restored what they could, threw out what was ruined, sold some of its precious Audubons to raise money, raised the window shades and painted the interior. Today it is a vibrant city museum, used widely by school children, researchers and the general public, with many special events, concerts and art programs.

The Mysterious Mr. Ferrat

The Possible US Government Links Of One Of Flight 800's Doomed Passengers

By Jerry Cimisi

Of the 230 people who died on Flight 800 in July, 1996, none has a more curious background than a mysterious Algerian named Mohammed Samir Ferrat. He was one of the FBI's first suspects as a possible terrorist and he had business ties to a late official once under investigation for corruption.

In February, 1996, Secretary of Commerce Ron Brown was on a business of state trip to the Ivory Coast. During his stay he was photographed with the Ivory Coast's Commerce Minister Anforan Kacou, along with an American business executive and an Algerian doing business with the U.S. concern. The American company was Chadwick International, that built modular homes for developing nations and the American executive was George S. Henderson, Jr.

The Algerian was Mohammed Samir Ferrat.

At the time, Ron Brown was under investigation by the Department of Justice for allegedly soliciting campaign funds in an illegal manner. He was also charged with crossing the line of the law in regards to using the influence and power of his office.

Two months later Ron Brown was dead, killed in a plane crash in Croatia.

On board the Boeing 737, among others, were a number of military personnel, state department officials, businessmen and a CIA agent. It was said that Mr. Ferrat had been invited on that trip but for some reason at the last minute had declined.

The Justice Department suspended its investigation after Brown's death.

On July 17, 1996, a little more than three months after Brown's death, Ferrat is killed aboard TWA Flight 800.

Listed on Flight 800's manifest simply as Mr. Ferrat, he was 39, a wealthy Algerian businessman who owned homes in America, Europe, Africa - Maryland, Switzerland and the Ivory Coast, to be exact. He had also recently travelled to areas of the Middle East in which a number of terrorist groups were quite active.

But, almost immediately after beginning to investigate Mohammed Samir Ferrat, the FBI concluded it had no reason to suspect him as a terrorist. Eventually his body would be brought up from the depths and he would be buried in a Muslim cemetery in Paris where, at the end of the year, his mother would join him. Ferrat had been at John Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore where his mother was dying of cancer. Fate had him precede her by a few months.

There are those who insist it must be more than coincidence that Mr. Ferrat, having once escaped death in the mountains and strife of the Bosnian conflict, met his death so shortly thereafter. And the question is raised just how the FBI, who made its conclusions about Ferrat quite quickly, arrived at this conclusion after having claimed to not have interviewed Ferrat's associates or family. Mohammed Ferrat was listed only by his last name when Flight 800 manifest was first released.

mous sources have told reporters and private investigators that Ferrat may have had CIA links. A satisfying rumor to float, but unprovable at the moment.

What is known is that Ferrat took out life insurance policies worth millions of Swiss francs in the weeks before he boarded Flight 800. It is not unusual to take out life insurance before a plane trip, though Ferrat, it has to be said, was a frequent flier, a global traveller. Chadwick's president, George Henderson, said that in the weeks prior to the crash Ferrat had seemed preoccupied.

The CIA's Paris office communicated to the FBI that Ferrat might well have been an assassination target...

At least that is according to a September 22, 1998 article by Ted Sampley of the US Veteran Dispatch, who interviewed Henderson. The article went on to relate that in May, 1998, a report on Swedish television said the authorities were investigating Ferrat in regards to insurance fraud. The report went on to say that both the Swiss and the French were investigating Ferrat, and considering that he might in some way be connected to the tragedy of TWA Flight 800. A spokesman for Winterhur, an insurance firm, said it was withholding 437,000 pounds of payment to Ferrat's family until the investigation was settled.

A lawyer for a firm on the Ivory Coast who said his company had claims against Ferrat, stated that the businessman's finance firm SOFINSA (Software Integrado Sistemas Abiertos) was in debt and that Ferrat had made "transfers of millions into family and offshore accounts in the weeks before the explosion."

In AP reporter Pat Milton's book, In the Blink of an Eye, on the FBI investigation of Flight 800, she says that Ferrat had more insurance than any other passenger on the flight. She also relates something which earlier on (but apparently not so later on) piqued the Bureau's curiosity: The CIA's Paris office communicated to the FBI that Ferrat might well have been an assassination target by certain radical Algerian Muslims. Apparently a friend of the Ferrat family had spoken to some officials at the U.S. Embassy in Paris and related that Ferrat could have given money to one Algerian group and thus angered another who had not received his support.

Then, in Algiers, an anonymous caller phoned the American embassy there and said that the Flight 800 passenger named Ferrat had indeed been targeted by a terrorist group named El Nore - but the passenger was not Ferrat and was really a former member of a rival group, Bachir Hannaqui.

The caller went on to say that in three months a similar incident would occur.

About two weeks after Flight 800 exploded, the body that would be identified by the Suffolk County Coroner Dr. Charles Wetli as Mohammed Samir Ferrat was brought up out of the ocean off Moriches. The body was too ravaged to be identified other than that it was male. It wore a gold ring with the initials SF. With DNA drawn from Ferrat's mother, the authorities identified the body as Ferrat's. At this point the FBI looked on Ferrat as a respectable businessman, who had just been tending to his dying mother and who was flying to France on Flight 800 to see his fiancée.

Understandably, questions, suspicions and theories about Mohammed Samir Ferrat persist. Chadwick President Henderson said that Ferrat had not been the businessman who had almost made the doomed flight with Secretary Brown. That man had been himself, Henderson. But Chadwick International decided not to participate in the trip because the company, although in the past involved in placing houses in some pretty rough areas of the world, was not interested in Croatia or Bosnia at the time.

According to Sampley's reporting in the US Veteran Dispatch, Henderson said Ferrat had never met Brown before the Secretary's Ivory Coast trip of February, 1996. Ferrat's firm SOFSINA was in a $92 million contract with Chadwick and the Ivory Coast government. Henderson said that Ferrat had not been Chadwick's Algerian link to the Ivory Coast, but could not recall the name of the individual who had been - though he did tell the Dispatch the individual had later died in a car accident in Virginia.

Henderson said that some time after Ron Brown's death on April 3, 1996, Ferrat contacted the late Secretary's son and suggested that a development of Chadwick houses in the Ivory Coast might be named after Brown.

* * *

The story of Ron Brown might seem to offer more information than the story of Ferrat, but it also offers more supposition at conspiracy.

At the time of his trade mission to the realm of the Bosnian conflict, it is alleged that Brown was about to cut a deal with federal prosecutors.

Some of the maze of ominous facts about Brown: Charles Smith, a journalist and president of a computer security company, SOFTWARE, writes that early in the Clinton administration, Brown had hired John Huang, to work at the Commerce Department; by the end of the '90s, Huang would be convicted for his part in funneling illegal campaign contributions to the Democrats. A co-worker of Huang, Ira Sockowitz, left the Commerce Department in 1996 with thousands of pages of secret information on satellite encryption, and earth imaging technology. One of the Sockowitz documents was so valuable to the government that when Federal Judge Royce Lambert asked the National Security Agency to present the court with a copy, the NSA told the judge it must be kept secret. Sockowitz was also in possession of the classified memos from Commerce Undersecretary William Reinsch. Among them were the details of Clinton's July, 1996 waiver to have the New York based company Loral, headed by one of his biggest contributors, trade highly sophisticated technology to China. Loral's CEO Bernard Schwartz donated $1,000,000 to the Democratic National Committee.

A House Sub-Committee examining the Loral affair was assured by the company that Loral had obtained no special favors, and that no technology of a military nature had been passed on to China; yet a 1994 Loral memo sent to Ron Brown himself related that some of what Loral wanted to deal with the Chinese were "commercial applications of DoD [Department of Defense] technology."

In 1996, Loral President Jerald Lindfelt wrote to Brown that the company wanted to sell Advanced Aperature Radar to the Chinese and asked for Brown's help "by identifying someone in the Commerce Department high enough to resolve these issues" that the Department of State, the Commerce Department and Defense Technology Security Administration were having their doubts over.

The Brown-Chinese connections goes on. The wife of a Chinese general gets permission from the Department of Commerce to secure "advanced - encrypted - secure fiber optic" systems. In 1994 President Clinton arranged for Loral CEO Schwartz to meet with the Vice Minister of the Chinese Commission of Science, Technology and Industry for National Defense (COSTIND) - which, according to the General Accounting Office, "oversees development of China's weapons systems and is responsible for acquiring telecommunications technology applicable for military use."

Smith says he got these facts from the Commerce Department yet on another occasion, the department, in response to a FIOA request, said it could not "confirm nor deny the existence of such records," adding, "If records were to exist they would be exempt from disclosure...."

Christie Brinkley is as beautiful in person as she is in her pictures. And there is a lot more to her than just her modeling career. She's a woman of convictions, she's lived by them and she's made a considerable difference in the world she inhabits because of them.

I talked with Christie at a table at the Candy Kitchen the other day. Christie was raised in Los Angeles, the daughter of a TV producer and writer who wrote such TV shows as The Fugitive, The Kraft Suspense Theater, Have Gun Will Travel and Bat Masterson. He also produced the very successful Trapper John, M.D. Christie's brother grew up to become a nutritionist. He now lives in New Mexico and you'll find him online at brinkleysbest.com, which is an online health food store.

Christie lived an upper middle class childhood, went to Lilly St. France in Los Angeles, then to Our Lady of Malibu then to the University of California at North Ridge. She also studied art extension at UCLA. She had in mind to become a painter. To that end her parents sent her to study art in Paris. She was to remain there for four years but as time went by, she found herself doing more modeling and less painting.

"I originally went to the modeling agencies in Paris just to make extra money while I studied painting," she said. "But new modeling offers kept coming up. I mean, how could you turn down a five day, all expenses paid trip to Morocco? I went out of curiosity, more than the money. Who wouldn't go? But it was time consuming and soon my paintings were getting smaller and smaller. I'd do them and think, well this modeling assignment will be my last and I'm down to little radiograph pens and drawing tiny watercolors. I think: I'll go back later and make larger ones. But it never happened, at least, not yet."

While in Paris, Christie got married for the first time, to Jean-Francois Allaux, a political illustrator. She was twenty-years old and she was to stay married to him for eight years. Back in America, with a cover with French Vogue in her portfolio, she signed on with Eileen Ford.

"One of my first assignments," she said, "was to come out to the Hamptons for a shoot. It was Bill Connor's house, a captains house in Sag Harbor and it was shot by Mike Reinhart. I fell in love with the place."

Christie's modeling career during the next few years is well known, it made her a nationwide star. One of her favorite assignments, she said, was her annual outing with Sports Illustrated for the bathing suit issue. She's been on assignment in Brazil, and in the Seychelles Islands off the coast of India.

"All the islands in the Seychelles are different," she said. "I think this group of islands must be among the most beautiful in the world. Some have dense rain forests and wild beaches, others have huge boulders stacked up on the beaches. I also thought Alaska was just spectacular. It was overwhelming in its majesty. I've never seen anything like that."

I asked her about how she met Billy Joel, who was to become her second husband. It was a rather famous meeting in St. Bart's, for reasons that will soon become obvious. Billy had told me his version. Here was Christie's.

"Billy later told me that he saw me getting off the airplane at the airport and he did all these Billy Joel poses to sort of impress me, but I paid no attention. To be honest I really didn't know just how famous he had become as a rock star. I was in France for all those years. He wasn't big in France. On the modeling shoot I was with Elle McPhearson. She told me that she had heard he was on the island, and that she had a big crush on him. Billy, it turned out at the time, was big in Australia. Also with us was Whitney Houston, who I think was about seventeen and hadn't made any records yet. Anyway, we were staying at the PLM Hotel and we went down to the bar and there was Billy Joel playing the piano. The three of us went over and we met him. I think Billy had eyes for me, but Elle had eyes for him and meanwhile, Whitney Houston wanted Billy to show her how to be a famous singer. 'I'd like to be a famous singer someday,' she said. I remember the four of us sang 'Respect.'"

Who's Here:

Billy Joel and Christie were married early in 1985. At the end of the year their daughter Alexa was born and they moved out to Amagansett. They were divorced in 1994. Christie also has a boy, Jack, five, from a previous marriage to Richard Taubman and she and Southampton architect Peter Cook, to whom she is currently married, have a boy, Sailor, born in 1998. They live in Bridgehampton.

Christie has always believed that we should try and live our lives in as clean and pollution free environment as possible.

"I need to do right by my kids," she said. "We are vegetarians, we have organic gardens at our house, we drink bottle water."

"I had thought moving to Eastern Long Island that we would be living in a pollution free and nuclear free area. It came as a shock to me that breast cancer incidence is so high out here and my first thought was that it must be because of the chemicals that the farmers had put into the land in the 1950's. But then I became aware of the Millstone Nuclear Reactor, just fifteen miles away on the Connecticut shore. Apart from Three Mile Island it has the worst record of any reactor in the country. They've dumped radioactive waste, they've lied, they've taken water from some place else as a sample and then lied about it, they've lied about the credentials of their operators. It's really quite amazing, the NRC just doesn't take into account that the neighborhood nearby has to be safe. I believe everybody needs to be as informed as possible about the situation.

"The government gives us this false sense of security. There are warning labels on pillows, on helmets, but the NRC has never even tested the radiation from the Nuclear Reactor in Brookhaven, and then they change the number of REMs that they say are safe coming from nuclear reactors. This is not right."

Christie found out that there is a very high number of cases, twenty-two, of a certain kind of cancer in children within the immediate area of the Brookhaven National Laboratory. She's been very vocal and very persuasive about it. After a recent visit to the Brookhaven National Lab, the government decided to shut the reactor there which led one scientist to say that policy was now being made by celebrities rather than scientists. Maybe so, but Christie is also a concerned mother, and it's concerned mothers who fought as Mothers Against Drunk Driving that got those laws changed.

In recent months, probably because of her activism, Christie has been invited to take part in events that go beyond fashion and modeling. Last fall for example, she was invited to go to Bosnia and Kosovo as part of military show to entertain the troops. It would be a Christmas show.

"I went with Terry Bradshaw, Mary Chapin Carpenter, Downtown Julie Brown and some of the Dallas Cowgirls."

Christie and some of the others were picked up aboard the Secretary of Defense's militarized 747. Chinook and Black Hawk helicopters went with them in formation for protection, with heat seeking missiles under their wings. They performed in Bosnia, in Kosovo, at an army base in Aviana, Macedonia, and for the sailors on board the aircraft carrier USS Bataan, which was at the dock.

"We arrived in a snow storm in Macedonia," Christie said. "It was decided that it was too rough for us to perform on board the ship, so they brought it in for us. We had to do a condensed show – the full show was two hours – because of the delays we had. But then when we went to Kosovo the producers said, give them all you've got."

"Give me an idea of what the show was like," I said.

"Well, there was one sketch when John Carroll sang 'I'm Dreaming Of a White Christmas' and he got to the one part where he said, just like the one I used to know, and I came out in this red dress that would have done Michele Pfeiffer proud. There was another sketch with John Singleterry and Terry Bradshaw. Bradshaw said to me he was thinking he would like to have a new career in modeling, 'What do I do?' he asked. And I'm standing there in a flight suit and I say, 'You work out, you eat right and then you need to slip into something tight,' and I unzip the flight suit like this."

OBSERVATIONS OF A NEW ISLANDER # 127 PULP FRICTION

Paper. Paper will take over your house.

It all starts at the post office. You pull multiple catalogs, bills and worthless correspondence out of your little PO Box every day. About once a week, you get a letter that means something to you. You bring the bundle in to the house to "sort it out later." That's your first mistake.

Once paper gets in the house, it takes forever to get it out of the house.

First it goes into a pile. It ages there like a fine wine. Maybe a week goes by, maybe. The pile is sloshing over and you've had to straighten up the stack at least twice.

Finally, you have to face it. The bills have to get paid. You carry the bundle to the table and begin the triage process. Bills in one pile. Catalogs in another. The real chaff, the advertisement stuff, goes straight into the recycle pile.

The advertising junk is the first paper to make it back out of the house. The bills take longer because they expect you to put a check in the envelope. Picky, picky, picky. The catalogs take the longest to get out of the house.

Catalogs can't be rushed. Wishbooks, as I call them, must be savored slowly, especially now that the holiday things are starting to come out. At some quiet time, you can look at each page for the treasures you can't live without. Pages with treasures must be dog-eared or somehow marked so you can find the special item easily. The catalogs with treasures are put aside in a new pile for when you have money to get those things (ha, ha, ha). The leftover catalogs get to leave the house now. You usually keep more catalogs than you toss.

Everyday you get more catalogs from the Post Office. Repeating the wishbook review process you continue to dog-ear and keep your favorite catalogs. The pile of wishbooks grow to a considerable stack. You haven't bought anything from them yet. Finally the wishbook pile is completely out of control. Wishbooks don't stack well because of the slick paper, so often you keep wishbooks in a box or basket. You take an oath to yourself that you will not let the basket/box overflow. When the wishbooks reach the top, you gird your loins, get some donuts, and heave the thirty pound pile onto the table.

Triaging wishbooks is a fine art. It tunes you into who you really are, as you thin the stack to just your favorite favorites. You discover you have multiple copies of the same wishbooks. For instance, I always find I have saved at least three of the L.L. Bean and Land's End wishbooks for kids clothes. I have multiple copies of Lillian Vernon, Roamans, Paragon and Bits & Pieces Jigsaw Puzzles. I look in my wishbooks box and I notice there's not one decent sex toy catalog in the lot, no wishbooks with books and tapes for better sex, nothing that would identify me as the hot tamale I know I am. The box contains evidence of a boring baby boomer mother. I wanna be Madonna, but I'm lookin' at Donna Reed. This is depressing. Like when I turned 40. I was handling it well until I realized my boobs were now 20 years old a piece. Just depressing that's all.

You are able to pare the wishbook pile down about seventy five percent. You still haven't bought anything and tomorrow, more paper is coming. Like the jungle, the paper piles grows back faster than you can hack it away.

And then... it strikes... Pulp Friction. That day you've had it with all the paper. You've watched paper come in, take over boxes, baskets, corners, tables, desks... suddenly it's everywhere... like the Blob... oozing and seething over all exposed surfaces in your home. Paper is everywhere, you can only see tiny patches of surfaces. The blinders are off and you realize paper has once again taken over the house.

In a burst of courage and rage, you gather ALL the paper you can find, including the sacrosanct favorite wishbooks and they all go to the Mixed Paper bin at the Recycle Center. You realize you were a fool to keep those catalogs... what were you afraid of? That they wouldn't send you another?

Returning from Recycle Center you walk into a paperless house. You appreciate seeing all of your dining room table at once. The house looks clean, purged, purified. You feel free, liberated, the paper chains that bound you have been torn asunder.

Enjoy the moment, for tomorrow... you must go back to the Post Office...

Pumpkins and potatoes, potatoes and pumpkins, it's a wonderful time of year. Everywhere I look there are signs of autumn. The pick your own pumpkins fields are getting a lot of play and the child in all of us seems to come to the surface when it's time to make a jack-o-lantern or think about a Halloween costume. I have yet to find the perfect pumpkin but have already stockpiled enough potatoes to get me through the next month or two.

There was a clothing trade at my house the other day. This is a formula for a party that I recommend to everyone. Every woman I know has a bag of clothing that she doesn't wear but can't bring herself to give to charity. The clothes trade is an opportunity to get rid of this clothing in exchange for someone else's discards. I myself could give away thirty or forty things without noticing the change. This is mostly because I frequent thrift shops and yard sales. I have too much of everything. It's hard to give away the clothing without taking "new" things out of the pile. There are always wonderful things to grab at these trades. This last trade brought many women. I didn't know most of them. The word went out about the trade. The first women arrived a half-hour early. This ate into the time I would have used to make more hors d'oeuvres. I had already put out a little food so I didn't worry about it. Within forty minutes my small living room was full and I couldn't get anywhere near the pile of clothing. Three hours later everyone was gone and I had three garbage bags of clothing ready to give to charity. Everyone went home happy with their free loot and I tried on the few things I had selected. I usually wait until the end and pick my choices from the leftover pile. When I lived in San Jose del Cabo, we had many clothes trades. The shopping was terrible in the area. My girlfriends were very generous when it came to these trades and we all made out like bandits. We also went out of our way to impress each other with wonderful finger foods. We would spend hours making delectable treats to contribute to the party. If we had potluck dinners that included the men, we would bring quantities of food, but for these women's gatherings we focused on quality not quantity.

Although the season is winding down there is still a lot going on. I went to two art sales for charity and the Hampton Day School's annual potato festival on Saturday. I missed a reading at Guild Hall and a book signing for Dan's new book at Bookhampton in East Hampton. I also missed an opening at Gayle Willson's gallery in Southampton and an opening in East Hampton. Even at this time of year it is impossible to keep up with everything. In the last two weeks I've had two exhibitions of my own paintings and had my paintings included in two charity shows. People are teasing me about all the free time I have. There is still too much to do. Speaking of that I encourage everyone to go to the Film Festival. This is a great time to relax and see some interesting new footage.

I'm off to buy a pumpkin, scoop out the seeds to toast them, study the film fest schedule and process some vegetables from my girlfriend's garden before the first frost. There's still time to think about Halloween and what silly costume I'll put together. Someone told me that your costume expresses your alter ego. I shudder to think what will come out of my subconscious this year. I don't know if I'm a witch or a fairy princess. I know I'm not any well-known political figure. Thank the powers that be!

"I felt wonderful about what we did. The GIs loved it. I remember flying out over Kosovo and we flew over this group of mass graves and nearby there was just an occasional Christmas tree light and it would just break your heart. This was a major war zone as you know."

In the spring, Christie Brinkley was asked to be a super delegate at the Democratic National Convention.

"I got a call from Robert Zimmerman who is the New York State Democratic Campaign Chairman, and I asked him what it would entail. He said I'd have to petition for Gore. He couldn't be nominated without a certain number of signatures. Then I'd go to the convention in L.A. I petitioned on the streets in Sag Harbor and East Hampton. I talked to all kinds of people. For every signature I got twenty minutes of conversation."

Christie described the Democratic Convention. She said she was astonished at the attention she got in the New York Delegation.

"There were cameras all over the place, remote mikes, cameras up in the balcony. Somebody would come over, I wouldn't even know from where they were. TV, Internet, who knew? And they'd say you'll be on in ten seconds, nine, eight, seven, six. And then there'd be a newsman with a headset asking me questions."

Christie said she was dazzled by the scene, which she described in vivid terms.

"I was put up at the Regency Beverly Wiltshire," she said. "And we'd be up and ready really early for the New York Delegate breakfast. Speaker

Silver hosted it and there were senators, congressmen, and half of the room was buffet and half tables and chairs. And three quarters of it was rally and some of it involved briefings on major issues. You wouldn't believe the amount of mail that I got and that we all got, from interest groups and so forth. They came in by the bucket full, for breakfast, for dinners, for parties, for requests to speak, requests to just show up. And then about nine or ten a.m. we'd go over to the convention hall in the Staples Arena.

"I remember the first day I went. There were all these helicopters buzzing around and as we came over a ramp in our bus, there, below us, was a parking lot with media satellites as far as the eye could see. There was so much security, we were dropped off really a great distance from the arena and there seemed to be a wait to get us in there. A couple of us went with this guy who had a pedicab. We went down the street past a building with a mural on it showing JFK and Martin Luther King, and then he pedaled down a side street right into a group of protesters. It was like, here's where you could have all the protests going on. MTV was there and they had a concert with Rage Against the Machine. Many of the protestors seemed to be just rough guys with these signs that said God Hates Sin. It was an anti gay protest. I spoke to one of them, 'God doesn't hate,' I said. And he said, 'God loves hate.'"

"There were all these people with tattoos and pierced-in jewelry, and we were all wearing all these Gore red, white and blue buttons. The pedicab driver was this young guy, he had no shirt on and I said, 'Boy this would be great in the Hamptons,' and he said, 'you want to sponsor me there?'

"There were riot police out to keep order. It was quite a scene. Anyway, to my amazement the pedicab driver circled back to exactly where we started in the first place and then we got out and wound up with this TV guy who gave us a ride to the arena in a golf cart.

"The convention itself, which lasted several days, was an even more moving experience. Here were all these people, firemen, steelworkers, mothers against domestic abuse, all willing to take the time to make the world a better place. Tipper Gore spoke, and they showed on this screen photos from a family album, Al in army gear, Tipper with her first baby.

"Bill and Hillary Clinton had their night on stage and Joe Lieberman spoke. He said people would ask what he'd do if his position differed from that of the vice president. And he said, 'I'll tell him what I feel and then I'll defer.' He has very likable qualities and he comes across as such a mensch. As for the vice president, I thought his speech was perfect. The best. He was about substance and issues. He had a plan, a vision. He said, 'I might not be the most exciting but I'll never let you down.'"

Our time together ended, and I couldn't help but feel that Christie Brinkley considered herself a lucky person, lucky to have such an exciting life. And to be right in the middle of it. I think she's someone who's making a difference. •

WIN $5000

FOR YOUR FAVORITE CHARITY, and get recognition on the label for you,
by designing the winning wine label for our forthcoming Rose of Cabernet Sauvignon.

Dress My Lady Contest Rules

What you have to do.

We have a beautiful Rose of Cabernet Sauvignon aging gracefully at our vineyard, waiting for her release in the spring of 2001. She is a complicated, sophisticated red who defies being labeled. Your challenge is to design the label for her. The contest will be held on the vineyard.

When do you have to do it?

Our Dress My Lady Contest will run during the 2000 year harvest season and will officially close at 12:00 midnight October 31, 2000. All entries must be received by the midnight of that date. We will announce the winner, if there is one, on the vineyard.

How do you do it.

Create the graphics for the label. The label must be a minimum of 100 words and must be a minimum of 100 words. The label must be a minimum of 100 words and must be a minimum of 100 words. The label must be a minimum of 100 words and must be a minimum of 100 words.

Who you have to impress.

We are creating a three-edge panel. The panel must be a minimum of 100 words and must be a minimum of 100 words. The panel must be a minimum of 100 words and must be a minimum of 100 words.

What you get when you win.

We will award your winning design to fit our label. We will feature your name and background on the label. You will receive a special award of $5,000. In addition, we will contribute $5,000 in name to the charity of your choice (see restrictions below).

Here are the legal requirements.

1. No purchase necessary for entry in the Contest. You must be 21 years old or older to enter.

2. All submissions must be original designs and not infringe on any third party.

3. Upon receipt, all submissions become the sole property of Gallic Estate Vineyards, LLC (or its assignee) and shall be limited to entries recognized under Internal Revenue Code.

4. The contest is open to all persons who are residents of the United States and who are at least 21 years old as of the date of the contest.

5. The contest is open to all persons who are residents of the United States and who are at least 21 years old as of the date of the contest.

6. The contest is open to all persons who are residents of the United States and who are at least 21 years old as of the date of the contest.

Ferrat

It was Ira Sockowitz, another man who was supposed to be on the doomed flight in April, 1996, who identified Brown's body. It was a corpse that many thought the result of a murder.

The CNN report the day after the crash "on the top off a small hill near Dubrovnik in Velji Dol," said that "the government's formal position is that Brown is missing." Though by later that day CNN was carrying the list of the dead.

Examination of Brown's body showed a perfectly round hole at the top of his head.

In December, 1997, Air Force Lt. Colonel Steve Cogswell and a deputy medical examiner with the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology (AFIP), related to Christopher Ruddy of the Pittsburgh Tribune-Review that Brown had received an "apparent gunshot wound" and that he and other pathologists reported this, expected an autopsy to be done to determine if this were so, yet no autopsy was ever performed.

The official report on the incident said that the hole in Brown's head had been caused by striking a rivet in the crash.

Cogswell also mentioned what might be bullet fragments in the x-rays. Secretary of the Air Force F. Whitten Peters said this had been caused by a defect in reusable x-ray cassettes.

After the Tribune published Cogswell's revelations, one day when he was at work he was told he was under investigation by the government and that he should not leave his office or speak to the press. He was brought by military police to his home where all material, slides and photos related to Armed Force institute of pathology cases were confiscated.

Cogswell was joined in his misgivings by three other AFIP officials: Army Lt. Col. David Hause, Air Force Major Thomas Parsons and Chief Petty Officer Kathleen Janoksi. She told radio talk show host Bob Grant about the irregularities concerning the examination of Ron Brown. It was Janoksi who had discovered the round hole in Brown's head; and she discovered, months later, that the file on Brown no longer contained any x-rays of his skull.

Profoundly disturbed at the manner in which the military hierarchy acted over any criticism from AFIP pathologists that no autopsy was ever ordered for Brown, Janoksi insists she has no political motive; she is a lifetime Democrat and had voted for Clinton.

According to Ruddy's reporting, Lt. Col. Hause, before the gag order was imposed on him, said it was "interesting" that Secretary Peters statement about the apparent metal fragments in Brown's skull being caused by defects in the x-ray was made after Col. Cogswell spoke about his dissatisfactions over the fact that no autopsy had been ordered on Brown.

The year ended with further deaths in the Department of Commerce. Barbara Alice Wise, 48, a secretary for fourteen years at the department, was found dead in her office on November 29, 1996.

She had been last seen on the late afternoon of November 27, before the department closed for the Thanksgiving holiday. Initial press reports said the body was bruised and was nude when found. The police said there had been no sign of foul play. The office was locked. The death was listed as from natural causes.

A few days afterward, on December 4, Melinda Yee, a former aide to Secretary Brown, gave a deposition that she had personally destroyed handwritten notes and other documents of American Department Commerce activities and missions which had been subpoenaed by US. District Judge Royce C. Lambert.

A lawyer under the employ of the Department of Justice and representing the Commerce department in the matter told the judge that their department had asked for documents from a co-worker of Yee's, but had not asked Yee herself. That co-worker had recently died, said the Department of Commerce. It is not known if the co-worker referred to was Wise.

At any rate, whether the documents Yee says she destroyed would shed further light on Ron Brown's connections with the mysterious Mr. Ferrat, or the government's connections with the Algerian are likely to remain unresolved. In the end, if the story of Mohammed Samir Ferrat, has any worth in reviewing any unsavory portion of recent American covert history, it is likely to shed more light on the sorry affair of Ron Brown than that of Flight 800. Yet, then again, one never knows. •

Mai, in northern Thailand. Christine Saar of Wainscott sent one from Alotau, Papua New Guinea. "Next stop New Zealand," she wrote. "Perhaps this cover will travel the farthest to get back to you."

Ruth Doran of Westhampton Beach, sent an entry from the Sheraton Addis in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. But she got confused and sent us a dateline not from Dan's Papers but from the Addis Tribune, a Tarnack International publication and also Ethiopia's first private English paper. It sells for 1.5 birr.

An interesting entry came from Eileen Foley, who has a summer house in East Moriches and a year round house in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, where for sixteen years she served as mayor.

She now holds the rank of City of Portsmouth Ambassador and was sending us her entry from one of three Japanese sister cities to the city of Portsmouth. This one was Nichinan in southwest Japan on Kyushu Island. She described the extraordinary adventure of the copy of the paper she had brought with her.

"I am a loyal reader of Dan's Papers. East Moriches starts the process, then to Portsmouth, New Hampshire, where I live during the working week, then it's up for grabs at the local high school. It's too much to save them in total though I love the diversity of the covers. It's got a personality all its own. Portsmouth has eight sister cities all together. In June, I will take a small group of high school students to Carrick Fergus, northern Ireland, eight miles north of Belfast. Enclosed are my cards and my slips from Dan's. Best wishes, Eileen."

We had three entries from Katmandu, Nepal, two of which seemed to show by their datelines that they were in that town at the same time. One was from Michael Northrup of East Hampton, and the other was from P. Mason, of Hampton Bays.

A Kuala Lumpur traveller, Jim Connelly, of Center Moriches, wrote, "I just had to enter your contest as I travel to Kuala Lumpur several times a year. One of my favorites things is to have breakfast with my wife while reading your newspaper."

We also had an entry from the town of Namche Bazaar Kasmir Masth. There were nine entries from China, including one from Stanley Zinn of Manhattan, in Shanghai and Paul Goldschag of East Hampton in Hong Kong. Scott and Christina Naughton staying in Harbin, China, wrote the following wonderful letter: "Harbin, China is just east of Mongolia and below the Russian border. I'm told it's a vacation town. Interestingly placed, but it makes me wonder what people are vacationing from, if they think it's a getaway. It's fifteen below zero."

Other entries came from David Salidor, the president of Dis, a publicity and PR firm in Manhattan who was in Costa Rica, Madeline Meehan of East Hampton from her winter home in Charlotte Amalie, St. Thomas, the Virgin Islands: Audrey Gottlieb of Springs sent an entry from the Greek island of Tzia, where Ms. Gottlieb wrote that the Greek Orthodox populace was preparing for Easter which they call Pascha.

And from Miriam Rav, who was in Chang Mai Province in northern Thailand, "It's the Thai New Year. On April 8, we will celebrate by throwing water on our friends and strange passersby. A good way to make a new acquaintance."

Nicole Caspani sent us a postcard with a topless bather and our dateline taped to the back from Ramatuelle, Cote d'Azur, France. That same week Michelle and Michael Lerner of East Hampton sent us a dateline from the Baltimore Hotel in Paris.

We also got an entry from Sandra Winenga of East Hampton, a licensed acupuncturist attending a convention featuring traditional Chinese medicine at an international conference in Beijing.

In the end, however, since I disqualified the two entries from Antarctica on technicalities, I had to consider the many entries from Australia. One of which I mentioned at the start of this article was from Augusta. I disqualified that one, too.

Dr. Alan K. Hogenauer of Oakdale, New York, sent in a seven page single spaced entry that might have equally served as a doctoral thesis about why Augusta was the farthest point from Bridgehampton, which was something we already knew. "I consulted the magnificent multi-volume American Places Dictionary in the Patchogue-Medford Library. This provided the degree-minutes-seconds coordinates for the selected point in Bridgehampton, New York."

This gives you the lengths Dr. Hogenauer was going to go to prove his point. What Dr. Hogenauer then did was to send an elaborate packet to the post office in Augusta, Australia with prestamped envelopes enclosed and instructions to send them

preview: fame takes a holiday

By Jan Silver

Warren Leight, last year's Tony Award winning playwright for his moving musical drama Sideman, is having fun re-working a musical revue from his salad days written with Cassandra Danz and Mary Fulham. Fame Takes A Holiday will have a brief run at La MaMa E.T.C. in Manhattan from October 26 to November 19. I attended a preview performance sans costumes and props at East Hampton's Mulford Farm barn on Saturday, October 7. If spoof musicals on the order of Nunsense and Forever Plaid – bawdied up a bit – tickle your funny bone, then this is for you.

The premise is simple. Four young, attractive singing actresses, calling their musical comedy act the "High-Heeled Women," play in small clubs, concert halls and dives trying to make it big in New York. This show is their onstage/backstage story played out in music, melodrama and camp. (Danz, Fulham and Leight actually wrote a successful Manhattan comedy-club act called the "High-Heeled Women" from 1978 to 1990.)

There are four dynamic actress/singer/comediennes playing the High-Heeled Women: Abigail Gampel (DeeDee), Deborah LaCoy (Lavendar), Susan Murphy (Crystal), and Mary Purdy (Polly). Ms. Purdy, who looks and sounds like a young Julie Andrews, is the leader of the troupe. Ms. Gampel plays the clever, talented singer/writer who has "fear of success." Ms. LaCoy is the ditzy blond (but watch her straight-faced take on a Casablanca scene), and Ms. Murphy plays a petite, Rosie Perez-type bombshell.

The musical numbers are archetypes (an Andrews Sisters-style song, a marching song, a romantic ballad, a confessional, a gospel, a ballet spoof, etc.) competently written by musical theater pros Dick Gallagher, Tracey Berg, Cliff Korman and Marc Shaiman. The lyrics by Leight-Danz-Fulham, in several languages including French, Yiddish and Italian, range from silly to witty.

This is satire for a well-traveled audience. For example, French chanteuse Edith Piaf's signature song "Je ne regrette rien" becomes DeeDee's declarative "Je ne re-grout rien." (Sample lyric: "Once I laid floors, now I lay men!") The gospel-style song is "Jesus Is My Agent" and the Yiddish ditty is "Kiss Mir En Tuchas."

Fame Takes A Holiday is the final new play in the East Hampton Historical Society's fall series produced by Manhattan Drama Collective's Patricia Watt. A busy young woman, Pat has scheduled a reading of part-time Hamptonite Jenny Lyn Bader's romantic comedy Manhattan Casanova with Mercedes Ruehl in the city on November 6. She is also producing a play about seminal bluesman Robert Johnson, and is working to bring the Janis Joplin memoir musical Love, Janis (a Bay Street Theatre sellout this past summer) to Manhattan this coming spring. • back and thereby win the prize and that's how we got the entry.

"Granted, I am not personally there to mail this," Dr. Hogenhauer wrote. "But nothing in the brief list of contest conditions says I have to be and I have in fact driven/sailed around the world in an unbroken surface itinerary Bridgehampton-Perth/Fremantle-Bridgehampton, albeit long before the contest." (He means the year 2000 contest. –editor)

"In 1997, we returned to the area upon linking Mt. Isa-Darwin-Perth to the prior routing, but had to keep moving to catch the Indian Pacific back to Sydney. Hence, Augusta – a mere day-trip from where I have been – remains on the to-do list. Maybe next trip? Using the proceeds of the contest winnings?"

Unfortunately Dr. Hogenauer did not carefully read the ad we put in the paper. It reads, and I quote, "The person who sends us a dateline from Dan's Papers from the farthest point away... will receive a $50 prize." You don't have to be a genius to realize that this means you actually have to be there, Dr. Hogenauer notwithstanding.

Having perused the rest of the Australia entries, including several from the island of Tasmania, I determined that the winner was Joe Peers, of Long Beach, New York, who went to Apollo Bay in the province of Victoria and sent us back a dateline from our paper without comment. He will be sent the $50.

* * *

I know there are some of you who will say that with all these machinations these people ought to get a life and that probably includes me. What I would like to say is, everybody else should get a life. These people are true American adventurers and my hat is off to all of them, even to the ones who went to New York and to Chicago. It is good to explore this planet.

I'd like to end this by reading two entries, the first from Stuart Till, of East Hampton.

"I am sending Dan's Papers from southeast London, geographically only 3,000 miles or so from East Hampton. My claim is not the greatest distance geographically but the widest gap culturally, as I am sending this from the grounds of an English soccer club, Millwall, famed for their aggressive blue-collar fans who for the last ninety minutes have been howling and screaming in support of their team in a crucial end of season match. Surely there is no place on earth farther from the Hamptons than the home of Millwall, football club."

And this from Lind Kopf, of Manhattan. "Dear Dan, I am away from Manhattan for business and I am thinking of a poem my friend Nikita wrote. Missing you all."

Summer
I am laying in the meadow,
My arms stretched wide,

My cheek is pressed against the warm ground.
The wind slightly rustles
Through the grass.
I close my eyes,
And it seems to me
That I am home again.

"New York Friar's Club Roasts Rob Reiner"

On Friday in the Grand Ballroom of the Hilton, the New York Friar's Club honored Rob Reiner at their annual roast. Billed as Rob Gets Stripped of his dignity, it was a down and dirty put downfest of the Talented director, who is best remembered as Meathead in All in the Family. The jokes were decidedly off color as Roastmaster Michael McKean, from the 1970's Laverne & Shirley and writer of Rob's classic This is Spinal Tap set the raunchy tone. Billy Crystal and a host of NY Comedians, including Richard Belzer, Kevin Pollack, Al Franken, Alan King, Jeffrey Ross and Brett Butler kept the insults fast and furious. When all was said and done, however, it was hard for any of them to embarrass the man, who married Penny Marshall and fortunately for all of us he kept his clothes on. Thank you Rob for all the laughs and the serious stuff, too. The evening was filmed by Comedy Central for an edited version that will air on November 1.

Secrets Of The Hamptons Film Festival (Got Your Attention?)

By Dan Rattiner

Nine years ago, a woman named Joyce Robinson went through a divorce, and, when it was over, found she had lost the New York apartment and the house in L. A., but had gotten full title to a small summer house on Skimhampton Road in East Hampton. This was not what Joyce Robinson had wanted. Her career was as a casting director. And she did her work mostly in Los Angeles and New York.

But here she was. Not only here but with a young child going to the local school. And one day, she thought why not turn her career on its head? Instead of traveling half a day to get to her job in the movie industry, why not get the movie industry to come to her? Thus was the annual Hamptons International Film Festival born.

Today, Mrs. Robinson is gone. But the Festival, born full blown and wildly successful right out of the box, will this year have brought almost 20,000 movie buffs to the community before it is over on Sunday. Over 60 films will have been shown. And the Hamptons, during the five days of the festival, will have been something out of a Hollywood movie. There will be starlets with bare midriffs, packs of paparazzi, men in convertibles with gold chains and dark glasses and people conducting interviews with film stars on Main Street.

Some local people leave the area during these five days. Others love the glitz and the glamour, the stars and the limos and the walks up the red carpet through the throng of flashbulbs to what is otherwise just the local movie theatres.

The locals have their say.

"Well, it's better than a convention of dentists."

"This could have been a five day convergence of Hell's Angel motorcyclists."

Perhaps the most interesting comment was made by Bernie Kiembock of Village Hardware on Newtown Lane in East Hampton, who, some years ago, when asked if the festival were good for business —most people said it was — replied, "people didn't come out of a movie and say I think I'll go buy a rake."

On the next few pages, you will see the schedule of films for the festival for Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Among those considered good bets for the "Golden Starfish Award" are Auggie Rose, a thriller starring Jeff Goldblum and Anne Heche; Bunny, described as an absurdist, bleakly funny rumination about alienation in Los Angeles; Table One, which stars Steven Baldwin and is about four guys who open a restaurant; Falling Like This, set in the San Fernando Valley in 1981; and Diamond Men, starring Robert Forster, Donnie Wahlberg and Bess Armstrong.

There are four full length films that are set in the Hamptons. (Dan's Papers experts will be viewing these movies to see if they should become part of the Dan's Papers They Made the Movie Here Film Festival, which begins two weeks after the Hamptons International Film Festival.) They are Nine out of Ten, Fresh Cut Grass, On the Rocks and Pollock.

Ed Harris, who stars in this biography of abstract expressionist painter Jackson Pollock, will receive a special award at a ceremony under the festival tent in East Hampton at 4 pm on Sunday.

There is also a fourteen minute short called On the Bench, which is about some of the people who sit out in front of Dreesen's Market in East Hampton to enjoy their coffee every morning. Among those filmed are Tony Duke, Charles Gwathmey, Roy Furman, Faith Popcorn, Georgia Witkin and a host of others.

In the non-fiction department, people are talking about Keep the River on Your Right, I Remember Me, Full Blossom, Burning Man and Fighter, the true story of a World War II American Fighter Pilot.

A Jitney Bus will take people between the various venues where films take place during the Festival. A Digital Cafe will be available under the festival tent on North Main Street in East Hampton every day. There will be periodic close encounters with the filmmakers, some of them surprises, at Guild Hall in East Hampton.

All dentists will gather on Friday afternoon at Lake Ronkonkoma.

Growing Down In Brooklyn Got Rejected, Let's Party

A full length feature film that did not make it to the Hamptons Film Festival has made it to the Farmhouse restaurant smack in the middle of the Film Festival. Called Growing Down in Brooklyn, this black comedy was rejected by the Entrance Committee of the Hamptons Film Festival for applying two hours, or two days, or two weeks too late to receive any consideration. The timing no longer matters. As the story goes, when the Film Festival committee realized that this film suddenly has distributors buzzing to buy the rights to the movie, the producers said thanks but no thanks.

It was about that time that Robert Santoli crossed paths with Fred Lieberman, owner of the Farmhouse restaurant in East Hampton. Every year the Farmhouse throws a big party during the Film Festival and this year was searching for a Festival Film to tie in with. No luck as there didn't seem to be a whole lot of activity this year with films, parties, celebrities etc. And so, when Lieberman proposed to Santoli that they feature Growing Down in Brooklyn at a Farmhouse party, Santoli was only too happy to "throw in" with the concept.

And throw in he did. Mr. Santoli, who wrote and directed the film, as well as raised the money to produce it, told Lieberman that he not only would produce all of his writers and directors, he also promised to deliver almost all of the cast to the Friday the 13 party. And so the celebration had wings.

With no time and a lot of work, the two entrepreneurs in one day hired a band, got the proper permits, secured a local company to show the movie on a giant screen, and designed and printed flyers, banners, T shirts, TV spots and radio commercials along with a guest list and a sponsor. The sponsor is Tangueray, the people who make the Vodka and Gin.

The movie, based on a true story, takes place in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn in the mid-seventies. Mr. Santoli, along with three of his childhood friends, are the main characters and the movie, not unlike their real lives, gets a little rough. Dealing often with mafia wanabees, the movie stars Vincent Pastore, Tina Louise, and a major cameo role by sportscaster Russ Salzberg. Pastore is well known as Pussy from The Sopranos. Ms. Louise has a star filled career on Broadway and the movies.

According to Mr. Santoli, a rising star appears in one of the main roles in Growing Down in Brooklyn. His name is Donnie Keshawarz. Remember you heard his name here first. You can meet him on Friday.

The entire cast is expected at the Farmhouse party — which begins at 9 p.m. on Friday, October 13. Advanced reservations are $20, $30 at the door, and you can enjoy great Farmhouse cooking, live reggae sounds courtesy of the Tribe of DeJemb and cocktails by Tangueray and others. The film will be shown in its entirety at approximately 11 p.m. on a large screen with professional projectors and the whole nine yards. Call the Farmhouse at 324-8585 to make your reservations or for additional information. Sounds like a can't miss film party.

5:00 p.m. UA-3, Roads and Bridges, an ambitious feature about a young man's experiences with cruel and casual racism on a rural Kansas road crew.

5:00 p.m. Guild Hall, Nine Out of Ten, A novice screenwriter learns the dangerous pleasures of subverting the Ten Commandments in his effort to bring script to screen

5:15 p.m. UA-6, W.I.S.O.R., a team of engineers laboring to build the eponymous "robo-welder" capable of repairing the fast-deteriorating steampipes which snake underneath New York City.

6:15 p.m. UA-5, Three Man March, follows three ex-cons determined to repent and find that their plan will take more than faith to execute (w/"I Remember Me").

6:30 p.m. UA-1, The Simian Line, director Linda Yellen's beguiling exploration of love among four very different couples (including two charismatic ghosts).

6:30 p.m. UA-4, Auggie Rose w/Migrations, a surprising, meditative thriller about a witness whose obsession with the man he saw killed leads him to question his own identity, starring Jeff Goldblum and Anne Heche.

7:00 p.m. UA-2, Shadow of the Vampire, is a moody fictionalized account of the filming of the classic expressionist horror film Nosferatu.

7:00 p.m. Guild Hall, The Emergency of New Palestinian Cinema

7:15 Guild Hall, Dinner Rush, directed by Bob Giraldi features Danny Aiello, Edoardo Gero, Sandra Bernhard and a great cast in an energetic film that explores the combustible and glamorous world of New York's trendy eateries.

7:30 p.m. UA-6, Diary of A City Priest, David Morse gives a performance of weary power as real-life North Philadelphia priest John McNamee, whose journal of one year at the inner-city St. Malachy's parish forms the backbone of this precise, absorbing feature.

7:45 p.m. UA-3, For My One and Only, French auctioneer Claude discovers that home is where the heart is after a comic case of erectile dysfunction in writer-director-actor Claude Berri's charming French farce.

8:30 p.m. Westhampton, Stella Maris, This classic 1929 film stars John Barrymore and Camilla Horn. Marshall Neilan's 1918 film stars Mary Pickford, in a dual role, playing one woman shielded from life's harsh realities, and another who's seen too much of them.

9:00 p.m. UA-5, Fresh Cut Grass w/On the Bench, Jeff Dell has captured Main street and it's inhabitants on any given week-end in East Hampton. This light-hearted spoof perfectly inaugurates our new section. If you don't already know all the cast of characters you're sure to run into a few during the festival.

9:15 p.m. UA-4, Innocence, After five decades apart, two lovers reunite to the consternation of their families in Paul Cox's sublime and dignified drama.

9:15 p.m. Guild Hall, Keep The River on the Right.

9:30 p.m. UA-1, Aberdeen, Anchored by the staggeringly intense performances of the chameleon-like Stellan Skarsgård as a wretched, unrepentant boozier and Lena Headey as his estranged daughter Kaisa, Hans Petter Moland charts her attempts to unite Dad with the dying wife (Charlotte Rampling) he hasn't seen in years, even as the journey threatens to destroy Kaisa's career, unleash her own formidable demons, and ruin a blossoming relationship with wry trucker Clive (Ian Hart).

9:30 p.m. UA-2, Of Women and Magic, Claire, pushing thirty, burdened by indifferent parents, a troubled sister, a married lover and about to defend her anthropology dissertation, is hospitalized with migraines, and learns new lessons from her two roommates.

9:45 p.m. Guild Hall, Burning Man, 24,000 people gather to participate in the alternative conclave, which has been described as a cross between a Mad Max movie and a rave.

SATURDAY OCTOBER 14

10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Digital Cafe, will feature Cablevision's high-speed Internet access service, Optimum Online, networking by NCI Datacom, hands-on demonstrations of iMovie and Final Cut Pro by Macs & More and PWR Systems, and web site demonstrations by The Independent Film Channel and Room12.com. THE HAMPTONS

INTERNATIONAL FILM FESTIVAL

Behind The Scenes: Springer-Chicoine Publicists

There's hype and then there's hype. Gary Springer, head publicist for the Hamptons International Film Festival, knows the difference even though he says somewhat provocatively, "Selling movies is like selling tires. They're both products." Yet you know, even after a few minutes, that Mr. Springer is overstating his case to see the reaction.

There's nothing wrong with overstating his case, however. Not only is his company, Springer-Chicoine, experienced with the ins and outs of obtaining free publicity for clients, but Mr. Springer had a good teacher. His father, John Springer, was one of the first people to start his own publicity business outside the Hollywood studio system; he was known as "a gentleman's press agent," a man who told his son, Gary, "You'll get a lot farther if you tell the truth."

There are other reasons why Mr. Springer isn't your normal kind of press agent besides his family background. First, he understands his clients, particularly actors, from a perspective that's not easy to come by. Simply put, he was an actor himself for ten years, playing in such films as Dog Day Afternoon and Jaws III.

"I was all set to move to Los Angeles," Mr. Springer says when explaining how he ended up in publicity,

"but my wife didn't want to live there so we went to New York instead, and I worked with my father."

Mr. Springer continues. "Acting gave me focus and a sense of concentration. Doing interviews myself, I know how to advise clients when they're being interviewed."

Another reason why Mr. Springer seems different from a lot of publicists is his sincere passion for movies. "You have to care about films. You're not a robot. You're not selling tires, you're selling dreams." (We knew all along that he didn't mean to equate tires with motion pictures).

We can't help but ask what Mr. Springer's favorite films are. "I've always liked Preston Sturges and his screwball comedies. They're intelligent and humorous." Mr. Springer goes on to recall how he engages in a whole weekend of movies, seeing blockbusters like The Longest Day and The Ten Commandments.

"Films are little babies," Mr. Springer goes on. "You have to nurture them. I try and treat all the films in the Hamptons Festival alike. I try my hardest to get them all the publicity I can. I tell the younger filmmakers that there's no guarantee their movies will get covered, but I'm here to help them."

"All the films deserve attention. They were made from the heart. The hardest thing for me to experience is that after we work so hard to promote a film, then there's no audience to see it. I feel badly for the filmmakers." Even so, Mr. Springer always has practical advice to give in these cases: "I tell the filmmakers (and myself) that the whole thing is just a movie."

Mr. Springer is practical in other ways as well. He knows that "You have to disseminate information to as many people as possible to get the most results, that even then there will be problems." What kind of problems exactly? "Journalists will not do an interview after they have promised to do so," Mr. Springer answers quickly.

What happens if he hates a film? How will he promote it? "There will always be some aspect you can find to like about a movie, an element you can believe in," Mr. Springer responds as quickly. "But I have discerning tastes. If I don't like a client's work, I will tell him or her that their project isn't right for us."

And then there's the problem of programs falling apart like last year when honored guest Jeanne Moreau couldn't make the Festival. "She was going to come up to the last minute," Mr. Springer explains. "But when she didn't, we just arranged for something else to take her place, a panel with some wonderful actors who were at the Festival. In another case, when a writer couldn't see a film, we just set up another screening."

"They Made The Movie Here" Film Festival

Featuring films that either takes place in the Hamptons or were filmed here.

October 21st - Grey Gardens (East Hampton)

This somewhat shocking documentary actually remains compellingly poetic and touching. It captures a small portion of the later years of Edith Bouvier Beale and her daughter, Edie (aunt and cousin of Jacqueline Onassis), filmed in their decaying, over grown mansion in East Hampton.

October 28th - Last Summer In The Hamptons (East Hampton)

Three Generations of a family of inflated egos and talent come to their summer home for what will be their final meeting. For icon Vivica Lindfors, it was to be her last film appearance.

November 4th Woody Allen's Everyone Says I Love You (Southampton)

November 11th The Brothers McMullen (East Hampton)

November 18th Love Walks In (Westhampton Beach)

November 25th Sweet Liberty (Sag Harbor)

It's apparent that being flexible is very important in Mr. Springer's job at the Festival. So is staying calm and friendly. Despite all the stress, however, Mr. Springer says he has one bit of advice for his staff: "Let's get it done. It will be over soon."

Mr. Springer's primary Festival staff member, Michelle Moretta (who formally worked in public relations for a San Francisco art gallery) has a similar approach: a passion for the films and a practical attitude. "I love films," she reiterates, "but my biggest problem is getting enough sleep."

"And, of course, you need patience to cope with stress that's bound to be present. We really need endurance once the Festival begins. But through it all, we try and appreciate all sides who are involved - the filmmakers, actors, critics, Festival personnel."

It's apparent from talking with Mr. Springer and Ms. Moretta that it takes a team approach to promote the Festival (a team that also involves the Dan Klores Agency).

Most importantly, it takes a love of film - a passion that has little to do with selling tires.

who pool their cash to open their own restaurant, unwittingly aligning themselves with a gangster and his slow-witted nephew.

11:15 a.m. UA-5, New Palistinian Shorts

11:45 a.m. UA-6, Diary of a City Priest, David Morse gives a performance of weary power as real-life North Philadelphia priest John McNamee, whose journal of one year at the inner-city St. Malachy's parish forms the backbone of this precise, absorbing feature.

12:00 p.m. UA-1, Pollock, Ed Harris, making his directorial debut, stars as modernist painter Jackson Pollock. Especially relevant to the East End audience where the artist lived and died, Harris' film captures not just the irascible and temperamental side of the man, but also his warmth, tenderness and remarkable creativity.

12:00 p.m. UA-4, Tsatsiki (Films for Families #2), The film is pleasingly observant of the ways in which mums in bands, cops from the sticks and boys without dads might actually live their lives. It is a warm celebration of the regular un-nuclear family.

12:30 p.m. UA-2, Pollock, Ed Harris, making his directorial debut, stars as modernist painter Jackson Pollock. Especially relevant to the East End audience where the artist lived and died, Harris' film captures not just the irascible and temperamental side of the man, but also his warmth, tenderness and remarkable creativity.

1:15 p.m. UA-3, Fighter, follows practical 77-year old former pilot Jan Weiner and passionate 72-year old author Amos Lustig as they retrace Weiner's harrowing and complicated journey from World War II hero to Italian POW.

1:30 p.m. Guild Hall, Complicated Women, For five glorious years, women ruled Hollywood. Between 1929 and 1934, women on screen took lovers, ditched unfaithful husbands, had children out of wedlock, pursued their professions without apology, and generally exercised strength and power that seemed revolutionary a half-century later.

1:30 p.m. Sag Harbor, Keep The River On Your Right

1:30 p.m. UA-5, Rain 1949 w/ The Jahalin, Ilan Yagoda checks in on a small plot of land, and the Arabs and Jews whose lives have been tied to it.

2:00 p.m. Westhampton, The Simian Line, director Linda Yellen's beguiling exploration of love among four very different couples (including two charismatic ghosts).

4:45 p.m. UA-2, For My One and Only, French auctioneer Claude discovers that home is where the heart is after a comic case of erectile dysfunction in writer-director-actor Claude Berri's charming French farce.

5:00 p.m. UA-1, Pie In The Sky, a fascinating portrait of one of Andy Warhol's more creative and interesting muses.

5:00 p.m. Westhampton, Dinner Rush, directed by Bob Giraldi features Danny Aiello, Edoardo Gero, Sandra Bernhard and a great cast in an energetic film that explores the combustible and glamorous world of New York's trendy eateries.

6:00 p.m. Guild Hall, The Emergence of New Palistinian Cinema

6:30 p.m. UA-3, Auggie Rose

6:45 p.m. Sag Harbor, Song Catcher,

6:45 p.m. UA-5, Happy Birthday Mr. Mograbi, is an original new 'new' semi-documentary telling simultaneous stories of three birthdays, the 50th anniversary of The State of Israel, the 50th anniversary of Al Nakba, the Palestinian refugee crises, and his own 42nd birthday.

7:00 p.m. UA-4, Diamond Men w/NY Encounter, starring Robert Forster, Donnie Wahlberg and Bess Armstrong in a comic drama about the unlikely friendship between traveling salesmen in Pennsylvania.

7:15 p.m. UA-1, State and Main, writer/director David Mamet has created a screwball behind-the-scenes comedy depicting the havoc created when a fast-talking movie crew descends on a seemingly bucolic New England town.

7:30 p.m. UA-2, State and Main

7:45 p.m. Westhampton, Innocence, After five decades apart, two lovers reunite to the consternation of their families in Paul Cox's sublime and dignified drama.

8:15 p.m. UA-6, Full Blossom w/Pie Fight '69, In 1969, a group of independent filmmakers staged a messy pie fight on the opening night of the SF Film Festival as a statement about their artistic plight.

8:30 p.m. Guild Hall, W.I.S.O.R., A team of engineers laboring to build the eponymous "robo-welder" capable of repairing the fast-deteriorating steampipes which snake underneath New York City.

8:45 p.m. UA-5, Shorts #2 Little Thrillers,

9:00 p.m. to Midnight - Award Gala

9:00 p.m. Sag Harbor, Vulcan Junction, shows nine days in the lives of six friends, before 1973's Yom Kippur War forever changes their futures and their country.

Shop 'til You Drop ... With Maria Tennariello

The leaves are starting to fall, and autumn has officially arrived. The shopping is delightful this time of year, the shops are having their late summer sales and are gearing up for the holiday season ahead. So let's do some shopping, shall we?

Hey, looking for that deal of the century? Check out the 50% off at Ocean Spray Pools & Spas on Old Riverhead Road in Westhampton Beach for great deals on demo model spas: There are only 40 spas available with great selections, 48 hour delivery and they service what they sell. Weekend and season rentals spas are also available. What a great idea!

At Hecho-a-Mano on Jobs Lane in Southampton, everything must go! They are having a "Closeout Sale" because Cynthia is closing the Southampton Store and offering savings up to 70%. You will still be able to purchase their distinctive aluminum and brass serveware, "Containme Containers" and mirrors at their website www.madebyhand.com. Now you can purchase all the great merchandise that you have been admiring all summer and save, save, save!

Nearby at Breezin' Up there is a cool 50% off original prices on selected merchandise. Breezin' Up is also located in East Hampton.

I love this store...Casual Home on County Road 39 in Southampton where they have chic casual, classic, comfy sofas, beds, tables, chairs, counter and bar stools, entertainment centers and accessories to name a few. By the way, Casual Home is celebrating fifteen years in the home furnishing business at the same location and I think I was probably their first customer fifteen years ago.

Right next door at Windows & Walls Unlimited check out the up to 60% off sale on Hunter Douglas window fashions and motorize them while you're at it!

Wandering through Watermill, I stopped off at Aesthetics Home Furnishings & Antiques to find a 20% to 50% off "Clearance Sale" going on right now. Located at the Watermill Shoppes on Montauk Highway, look for unique antique Mediterranean Urns, sofas, sleepers, armoires, console/coffee and dining tables, country pine antiques and lighting. Hope you take advantage of this great sale.

Don't forget that cocktail party that King-Beck Fine Stationary has invited you to at Club Colette on Friday, October 13 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. to preview their new Corporate Gift Giving Line. R.S.V.P. 283-1717. The store located on Main Street in Bridgehampton has it all and more. Stop in and pick out your holiday gifts now.

Looking for a nice selection of andirons and other fireplace accessories to warm your upcoming holiday season? Look no further, at Architrove at the Red Horse Plaza on Montauk Highway in East Hampton you will find just what you need to warm your toes this winter.

At Gems of the Past, 58B Park Place in East Hampton, you can enjoy the unique and unusual at their Tahitian Pearl and Gemstone Bead Show running from October 12 through October 15. You will enjoy seeing their "Queen of Pearls" Tahitian Blue along with a wide selection of gemstone bead necklaces. At Gems of the Past, they buy estate jewelry and features one of the largest fine gemstone bead collections in the country. There are many European designs or you can custom design your own unique bead creation. Call Karen Adler at 324-4367.

If you need that supply of natural body and hair care products, vitamins and supplements, and nutritional specialties stop off at Second Nature Markets on Newtown Lane in East Hampton.

At Who'd-a-Thought on Newtown Lane in East Hampton you will find a nice little store with affordable, traditional clothing and much more. Do check this one out!

The Crazy Monkey (love the name) has unique clothing, jewelry, bath, home accessories and affordable gifts. Located on Main Street in Amagansett, next door to One Stop Pet Shop, there are some sales going on here.

Driving to Sag Harbor is my favorite part of my shopping trip. I parked on Main Street enjoyed the walk through the village. At Latham House on Main Street there is a half price sale going on right now on ladies and men's clothing and fine sportswear. So, hurry for the best selections.

Zinnia on Main Street ion Sag Harbor is having an incredible "Autumn Sale" with savings on selected merchandise. You will find Eileen Fisher, Sue Wong, Garron, Mica and much more here.

A quick stop at The Paradise for a "Paradise Burger", one of my favorites, before I head home to put my feet up and relax while I chart my next week's shopping trip.

Until Next Week! Ciao and Happy Shopping!

CLASSIC CARS WITH BOB GELBER

USED CAR SECRETS

There's a hill on the Long Island Expressway, near Douglaston, where the Van Wyck Expressway intersects the LIE. No matter what time of day or night it is, cars are always mysteriously at a standstill going up this rather steep (for Long Island) hill. Perhaps the Department of Transportation should investigate this traffic phenomenon. Is there a weird excess of gravity in the area that continually holds traffic in its grip?

Traveling eastbound, I was caught in this "magnetic" traffic jam, surrounded by vehicles of various shapes and sizes. Suddenly, a car swooped into my lane, directly ahead of me. The rear muffler was unsullied silver, and the rear suspension, visible from below the body, was shiny black. I realized that this was a spanking new car, showroom fresh. Pulling alongside the car to get a better view, I noticed the owner had the audacity to boldly leave the new car's window sticker proudly displayed in the rear side window. "If you got it, flaunt it," flashed through my brain as I maneuvered my five year-old model through traffic. At least my old cruiser was not leased, but paid off.

Buying a used car makes a lot of sense, but purchasing the right car at the right price can sometimes be difficult, and often not for the faint of heart. You have to know the rules of the game. Selling used cars is a hardball game played by sales professionals, so as a buyer, even if you're a rocket scientist, in the world of used cars consider yourself a complete idiot.

There are four ways to buy a used car: from a new car dealer, (who has used car trade-ins), from a used car dealer who specializes only in used vehicles, from a "wholesaler" who will sell retail, and lastly, from a private individual. The safest way to buy a used car is from a new car dealer. However, the downside to buying a used car from an authorized new car dealer is that the car can be the most expensive on the market. Someone has to pay the overhead for that fancy building, the salesman's commission, and extra warranties they may offer.

USED CAR DEALERS. These are hard working people who spend most of their time trying to find used cars to sell. Many drive back and forth from Long Island to Manheim, Pennsylvania, where every Friday there are dealer auctions. This is wheeling and dealing on a grand scale, for ten thousand cars are presented for sale every Friday, and quite a few end up on Long Island used car lots. These cars are sold to dealer auctions by new car dealers looking for fast turnover, or unwilling to take the risk of retailing these model cars themselves.

Most cars on used car lots are those rejected for resale by new car dealers. They may have high mileage, or perhaps some body damage that in many cases has been repaired. Ask yourself this simple question, "Would you buy a used car from this guy?"

Then there are the "WHOLESALEERS." These guys are actually used car dealers without used car lots. They operate out of their homes, and sometimes friends' front yards. I'm sure you've seen many cars parked along the road, without license plates but with "for sale" signs in their windows. These are the least quality used cars one can buy, mainly because they are usually bought inexpensively at car auctions, or directly from new car dealers who just want to "get rid of the thing." They also disguise themselves as private sellers, not car dealers. Many times I've made calls inquiring about a "private" car for sale, only to find out, after a lot of questions, that the car is indeed owned by a wholesaler. Be careful, this crowd lies. PRIVATE SALE. Many car owners sell their cars privately, and this has usually been the best way to get a good price on a used car. The added bonus is that you can actually meet the owner, and speak to him personally. It's best to have any used car privately sold checked by a mechanic. By New York State law, any car sold by a licensed dealer has to be guaranteed. If the used car has up to 36,000 miles on the odometer, the guarantee has to be for a minimum of ninety days or 4,000 miles. If the car has from 36,000 to 80,000 miles, the guarantee has to be for sixty days or 3,000 miles. From 80,000 miles to 100,000 miles it's thirty days or one thousand miles.

I've always felt that the best used car buys are cars that are two or three years old with existing factory warranties. The lower the mileage, the longer the car will be factory guaranteed.

When buying a used car what what determines its value are mileage and condition, with mileage being the most important. I would rather buy an older car with low mileage than a newer model with high numbers on the odometer. Just be sure the mileage can be confirmed as genuine.

Remember that, and good hunting.

"Dad, the bathroom is flooded. I don't know what happened. No, I didn't flush anything down the toilet I am not supposed to. Dad, the rug outside of the bathroom is getting wet. Dad, call the plumber! What? The plumber doesn't work on Sunday? Now what?" Are you stuck in a bad situation? If not the toilet, maybe the problem is the car's faulty alternator or the snowy television or the out-of-control weeds or the temperamental computer. The list goes on. There is help out there on the Internet. Advice and instructions are available to fix or get rid of most problems. Still in a jam? Find out how you can contact an expert in your area. Read on.

TO START:

www.ehow.com- A great starting point for any question on how to get "it" done, ehow.com provides step by step directions for any endeavor, from tying a tie to swinging a baseball bat. Project details listed include a skill advisory and an estimate of the time required.

AROUND THE HOUSE AND GARDEN:

http://members.home.com/doug.graham/toilet.htm- Titled "The Toilet Papers," this site is completely dedicated to all aspects of the toilet. The author of this site, a service plumber himself, explains how a toilet works and gives step by step instructions, complete with diagrams on how to "cure common toilet ailments."

www.geocities.com/SiliconValley/Park/3254/cabletv.htm- Simple, yet informative, this site answers all the commonly asked questions about cable hookups. Ben, the cable guy, also provides helpful links and a very helpful interactive CATV problem locator.

www.vg.com- A comprehensive online resource that provides all sorts of information on everything from how-to gardening basics to successful gardening in your region. Conduct a search to find articles from the enormous online library on specific topics such as the war on weeds.

www.doityourself.com- This user-friendly site provides free information on all aspects of home improvement and repair. Still left with unanswered questions? Head to the online forum to post your concerns and await friendly advice from other doityourself.com users.

www.handymanonline.com- Thinking that you may be in over your head in this "do-it-yourself" nonsense? It's probably time to contact the experts. Providing free estimates and referrals to reputable contractors, handymanonline.com will quickly guide you in the right direction. Still unsure? Speak with a customer service representative right over your computer.

TIME FOR A TUNE-UP:

www.howstuffworks.com- Though informative and interesting for anyone who wants to know how anything works, the "engines and automotive" section is particularly interesting and helpful when fixing a car. Read about the automotive engine and discover why sometimes your car refuses to start.

www.misterfixit.com/autorepr.htm - Be patient with this site because it provides a lot of useful auto repair information. To find these helpful links and advice articles, you can scroll down the page to the appropriate section or use the search engine. In the rare event that you cannot find the advice you need, MisterFixit even yields questions himself. All aspects of do-it-yourself automobile maintenance are covered on this site, from changing a flat to rebuilding a Mustang engine.

http://cartalk.cars.com/Tools/mechanics-browse.pl- Still in need of a "professional" mechanic?

Search for a good mechanic by geographical area and the makes that they specialize in. Read customer reviews of the garages and mechanics listed and choose the best match for your needs.

The Curse At Deep Hollow Ranch

Deep Hollow Ranch is located in Montauk on the edge of old native land known as Indian Field. For years, rumors have circulated that the land is haunted. Here was once the burial place of native kings who had slumbered beneath the earth for a thousand moons. While some say the curse began when these ancient grounds were disturbed by the early settlers who were herding livestock on the Montauk Highlands, other local tribal lore indicates that the alleged curse may really have been initiated by the actions of an expatriate of the infamous Captain Kidd.

Rusty and Diane Leaver, of Deep Hollow Ranch, confirm that an ancient tribal curse has haunted the ranch for years. "Every fall we experience strange and unexplained happenings out on the trail. Is it the ancient tribal spirits seeking revenge? We don't know. But this year we decided to let people see for themselves."

Weekends from mid-October to the end of November, horse drawn wagons will take you from the main barn at Deep Hollow out onto the wild and lonely ranch land. The journey is not for the fainthearted - the sounds and the scenes tell of haunted souls through the ages and restless victims of the curse, like Captain Kidd who stalks the banks of Money Pond where folk legend says he buried his treasure before being unjustly tried and condemned to the gallows for piracy; or the strange account of a twelve year old burned at the stake for witchcraft in this area around 1666. And what's the connection between the Camp Wickoff Cemetery and an old lighthouse keeper whose son mysteriously drowned in Money

Pond? A lone figure on horseback is seen riding over the hills of Indian Field - does he hold the answer which will guide travelers safely through their journey - or is there no escape?

Does the curse live on, watching and waiting, to manifest itself on the modern landscape, if so, could the strange reports of a horrifying creature loose in the forest be true? Could this be the result of a Plum Island experiment gone terribly wrong? And what of the wild and vengeful Indian spirits who seek eternal revenge on those who desecrated the graves of their people: how will they manifest the curse? Prepare for a thrilling ride if you dare!

Deep Hollow Ranch in Montauk is the oldest Cattle Ranch in the United States. It is well known for its stables, cutting horses, cattle herds, and the dramatic landscape and beaches. It is also known for its entertainment and summer activities including the Ranch BBQ and Dinner Theater, Back at the Ranch Concerts, Beach and Trail Rides, Buffalo Bill and his Wild West Show, and Rough Rider Days.

The Curse At Deep Hollow Ranch is produced by Rusty Leaver and written by Margaret Wilson. The sound effects are by Jason Fowler Audio, Art Design and Special Effects by Brian Leaver. The actors are: Evan Thomas, Jonathan Peters, Patrick Gerschel, Margaret Wilson, Hayley Wilson, Brian Leaver, Gardner Leaver, Jr. and John Rand.

The show times: Wagons depart weekends between 1 p.m. and dark. Tickets are $25 adults; $15 children, family of four rate: $60. Deep Hollow Ranch is located at Roosevelt County Park (A Suffolk County Park) three miles east of Montauk Village in Montauk.

ART COMMENTARY

With Marion Wolberg Weiss

"THE PERPETUAL WELL" AT PARRISH MUSEUM

The Parrish's current exhibit with contemporary art from the Jewish Museum comes at a perfect time. The High Holidays have just been celebrated when Jews world-wide are once again reminded of their heritage as they are also reminded of their identity, the age-old question, "Who Am I?"

Naturally, people of all religions deal with such concerns throughout the year, but identity issues seem so much more intense at this time for Jews, especially. The show, "The Perpetual Well," does an extremely effective job of evoking the origins of such identity: ritual, memory, tradition and history. (This critic does not see these latter categories as separate from the essential identity theme, although the show is predicated on making each concept, like ritual, for example, a different section.)

There is a subtext at work, however. The exhibit is curated with the idea that people (at least those from a Judeo-Christian tradition) can relate to it no matter what their religion. Therefore, there is art which reflects the Old Testament, like "Cain's Suitcase" by Haim Maor, a box construction with a contemporary slant on the Cain and Abel story. It is stunning in its relative simplicity.

So is April Gornik's piece in the "Ten Commandments" series, "Remember the Sabbath Day." Ms. Gornik's cloudscapes have been interpreted in many ways before, but this spiritual meaning gives her work a potent dimension. Vito Acconci's "Thou Shall Not Commit Adultery" is another powerful work, a lithograph that captures fragmented male and female couplings set in a puzzle format.

Despite these outstanding examples, being Jewish brings a special and personal connection to the exhibit. Andrea Robbias and Max Becker's photograph, "Dachau," is an understated document of the concentration camp, evoking in this critic unforgettable experiences while visiting Auschwitz a few years ago. There's an objectivity about the photograph that plays against the overflow of emotional, subjective memories.

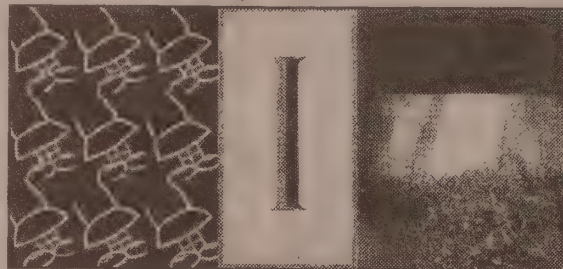

Photographic family portraits create bittersweet memories as well, especially Hannah Wilke's picture of her dying mother (which would be repeated in a similar series of and by Ms. Wilke herself).

Symbols of ritual bring forth treasured recollections, too, for this critic: Joel Otterson's Menorah (a most unusual one made with steel pipes); the cast and hammered silver vessel, "Miriam's Cup"; and Joan Snyder's abstract work celebrating Kaddish. Long live our memories, no matter what their derivations.

"The Perpetual Well" will be on view at Southampton's Parrish Museum until Nov. 12.

HONORING THE ARTIST: JIM GINGERICH

Potent energy pervades the work of Bridgehampton artist Jim Gingerich, such dynamics offering a perfect metaphor for this year's Hamptons International Film Festival poster. What better way to represent motion pictures than through images of movement as a figure (Gingerich himself) races through the fields ("Late for the Wedding"). As Mr. Gingerich puts it, "I want to paint the energy beneath the images, not the images per se."

Such kinetics also characterizes both Mr. Gingerich's creative oeuvre and his aesthetic development, a process always reaching to discover new ways of expression.

These expressive methods have taken many forms in the past, although they have always stressed energy: from figures frolicking on the beach to couples jumping out of shacks and reveling in Manhattan streets. While the locale may change, there are cogent similarities in Mr. Gingerich's work – a sense of joy, yet also a sense of anticipation that something is about to happen.

While the artist's use of Expressionism adds to such expectation, there's also a suggestion that Mr. Gingerich is thumbing his nose at the Hamptons. He pleads guilty to these inferences, noting simply that "My work is irreverent and ambiguous." Consider "Black Tie Yoga" as a relevant example in his recent series: eloquently dressed people standing on their heads in the sand. This visual statement may be making fun of affluency. Then again, it may be a celebration of those who are willing to "cut loose" by doing something crazy.

Jim Gingerich

Mr. Gingerich's Film Festival poster/cover painting exhibits similar ambiguity and irreverence. Is the man running toward something (a church) or away from something? And why is he wearing such inappropriate clothes: jeans and a undershirt covered with paint?

We're fascinated with knowing the "story" behind this running man; we can't help but be equally intrigued with Mr. Gingerich as well. Is he ambiguous and irreverent like his characters? We can certainly make a case for ambiguity: his energetic paintings on one hand and his simple, quiet life on the other. "My loop is small," he says "My daily routine consists of working in my studio, swimming one-half a mile in the sea (from May to December), going to Yoga classes. I try and keep it simple. People fill up their mind with too many details." Mr. Gingerich also admits to sometimes spending three hours or so just sitting in his chair and thinking.

What accounts for such behavior on Mr. Gingerich's part we can't help wonder. "I care very much about preserving the land," he explains. "Being part American Indian has given me great comfort with the land and space. I spend a lot of time outdoors. Growing up in Texas has also influenced my ideas about space."

When Mr. Gingerich talks about some other of his recent paintings, we see another ambiguity: his "Cidiots" series captures unusual people and behavior in New York, a place not known for having a lot of space. Yet the pieces possess the artist's penchant for both exhilaration and eroticism.

Regardless of the contradictions inherent in Mr. Gingerich's life and art, we can take comfort with the knowledge that he will always be moving forward, both literally and figuratively.

—Marion Wolberg Weiss

Jim Gingerich's work can be seen at the AE Gallery / Studio (15 Railroad Ave., East Hampton) from Oct 11-15. On Oct. 12, from 4-7, there will be a poster signing. The artist is also represented in a group show at East Hampton's Morgan Rank Gallery until Oct. 31.

THEATER

Sag Harbor's Bay Street Theatre brings Manhattan actress/comedienne Claiborne Cary in to do her award-winning cabaret show at 7 p.m. For tickets ($32), call the box office at (631) 725-9500.

MUSIC

Bing Crosby's brother Bob had a good swing and jazz band call the Bob Cats. They're still around and they'll be at Southampton's First Presbyterian Church on Sunday, 2 p.m., to play their Chicago-style music. Tickets are $15 in advance, $20 at the door and $10 for students. The performance is a benefit for the Southampton Historical Museum (call 631-283-2494).

Some of my favorite performers at the local clubs and restaurants are the Kipling Trio (pop standards and mellow jazz at Kipling's, Bridgehampton, Friday), the Lone Sharks (classic rock and rockabilly, often at Bridgehampton's The Wild Rose), the Dennis Raffelock Trio (Bridges, Bridgehampton, Saturday), pianist Hunky Page (weekends, Sag Harbor's American Hotel), and the Cardinali-Gene-Salter trio (jazz at Oyster Pond Restaurant in Montauk on Friday, jazz brunch at World Pie, Bridgehampton, on Sunday). Amagansett's Stephen Talkhouse has local rock favorite Nancy Atlas late Friday and Springsteen-style rocker Mike Plume late Saturday evening.

SPEAKERS

Canio's Books of Sag Harbor is celebrating its 20th anniversary this Saturday with an informal party featuring well-known photographers and authors briefly talking about their experiences at Canio's open readings over the years. The reception goes on from 6 to 8 p.m. and anyone wishing to speak briefly about their special experience at Canio's should call Maryann or Kathryn at (631) 725-4926.

Katherine Russell Cash will be at Book Hampton, East Hampton, on Saturday at 5:30 p.m. to discuss her memoir about surviving cancer, The Red Devil.

SPECIAL EVENTS

The Bridgehampton Road Rallye for vintage sports cars is this Saturday starting at 10 a.m. from the Bridge Hampton Historical Society's Corwith house on Main St. Autos competing for the Fireman's Carnival Cup (50 miles on back roads) are those built before 1921. Cars competing in the Hamptons Cup (100 miles) are built between 1922 and 1954. Drivers and their navigators should register at the Society by Friday. The competitors will be sent off every few minutes starting at 10 a.m. and all cars should be back by 3 p.m. for visitor viewing on the grounds of the Historical society.

The League of Women Voters has its annual house tour on Saturday afternoon between 1 and 4 p.m. A private estate and three East Hampton homes are on view this year. Architects and/or home designers will be present to answer questions. Tour tickets are $20 in advance at the Southampton Chamber of Commerce, all Book Hampton stores and Sag Harbor's Wharf Shop. Tickets the day of the tour are $25 at the East Hampton Free Library. Any questions, call (631) 537-0120.

"Celebrate Southampton" Day is Saturday. There will be a parade down Main St. and events at the Parrish Art Museum, Southampton Historical Society and Agawam Park. A country dance is planned at the new Rogers Memorial Library to end the day. For a schedule of events, call the Southampton Chamber of Commerce at (631) 283-0402.

Westhampton's annual Fall Festival of Arts and Crafts is Saturday and Sunday on the village green, Mill Rd. and Main St., Westhampton Beach, from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. There will be children's activities including pumpkin-face painting, music and food. All visitors will get a pumpkin to take home.

Guy de Fraumeni's

in The Hamptons

SPORTS AS METAPHOR

Being a scrappy kind of guy, I am not reluctant to throw a punitive pun into a review to punch it up. So, fearlessly, I state that, I have never met a phor that I didn't like, except perhaps for the movie makers all too frequent use of sports as a metaphor for the conflict of socially handicapped individuals' fighting their way out of and above their deprivation to redemption, salvation or even, near beatification. I am all for and enjoy the "We Shall Overcome" inspirational values but, the gracelessness of the preponderous number of head-cracking, of prizefighting and football films has this not-such-a-sports fan - anyway moviegoer unsettled. Many of the bloody glove movies are quite notable: John Garfield in Body and Soul, Kirk Douglas in The Champion and Sorcese's Raging Bull with Robert De Niro (one of the finest films made). I've lost the count of so many others and, then there's Sly Stallone's lifetime occupation, the Rocky movies... all of them beating the brains out of someone else (or/and, getting their own brains beaten out). My brain gets shaken, unsettling my sense of balance and justice. There are, after all, less bruised and bloody examples to picture and, certainly, more accurate metaphors. What good is a brainless salvation?

NOW WOMEN HAVE A SHOT

All that aside, Girlfight is a terrific film... the first feature of Karyn Kusama. She has skillfully written, cast and directed another of the above genre with a strong feminine twist of gender and conclusions. Her theme protagonist is a woman who must fight her way into the profession. There, she and her life take shape.

Barring some first-time missteps such as: untrue (as yet) gender-blind matches and over-the-top family situations, the classic, bare-bones storyline is given some tough new skin... though still bruised. (Ms. Kusama, 32, grew to love the sport and in publicity releases admits... "you can really get hurt. You can wear a breast plate, but its not effective to punch someone on the breast... you go for the organs or the brain, the liver, the kidneys.") O.k., I got that off my chest. My prejudices aside, in the spit pail, Girlfight didn't share the Sundance Film Festival Grand Jury Prize for naught.

FISTICUFF LINKS

The star of Girlfight, Michelle Rodriguez, is a truly brilliant light. It can't be hard for you to believe that the movie executives wanted a "white girl." Ms. Kusama had a lot of serious girl fighting to do to get the film done. Getting Miss Rodriguez and training her was inspirational. She looks and moves with the fierceness of a Stealth missile. The projected reach from her eyes is more meaningful and powerful than Kirk Douglas' right arm, and her body thoughtfully graces the brawling sprawl of the ring and Red Hook neighborhood and Brooklyn High School that she scares up with pent rage. Bubbling with heat and chafing Panamanian and Dominican Latino urban life, the vivid painting of the young boxer's dark background makes the portraits of her dominating father and attending trainer glare and glower with a Goya-like, broad stroke tenseness. Before the movie pushes in too closely to sensationalism, the film's naturalism simply and clearly keeps the family problems off the ropes and moving wisely. The teenage, would-be boxer gets to take her brother's place training with the men and he is helped by her to be an artist, in defiance of their explosive, mind-set father. The daughter and father have their own fight ring in the tiny kitchen of their housing project but, sensitively, the father is not just trying to win... he's also trying to protect the girl.

A MATCH MADE IN HEAVEN

In the skudzy gym, the girl meets a handsome featherweight. She has sparred with many young men, they are learning together. The handsome fellow, however, hits a spot untouched before... her sexuality. Love has come a bit late to her and maybe that's why their first kiss is a knockout. Catch it! Her first, "I love you" follows a fast right cross she lands to his head while they are sparring. Quickly their tender love affair takes a blow. They are paired off in a match and not to spar, but, to fight!

Everyone is wonderfully matched in the small cast and as seen in the sandy grains of Patrick Cady's realistic photography they appear as deep as the dark reaches of Madison Square Garden. Paul Calderon, as the father, contains the suffering of his wife's suicide and the thick anger of inability that fuses brutality. Santiago Douglas, is the girl's lover and opponent and exudes warm softness in his physicality that plays off of Michelle's beautiful power like body oil. Jaime Tirelli, carries on the tradition of the tough, gruff and amusing trainer. Ray Santiago, as the younger brother, also does credit to a comfortable, worn role. Idealization is not found in this cast.

"Float like a butterfly... sting like bee," phrased by Muhammed Ali, seems especially apt here. His daughter, Laila, has taken up the sport as has Joe Frazier's daughter and they look forward to facing off soon. The many new women athletes that dominate the vision of empowerment are embodied in the stunning dignity of Michelle Rodriguez who has lifted the weight of gender stereotyping off of actors' backs.

Guy-Jean de Fraumeni is the producer of award-winning films for ABC, NBC, PBS and European Feature Films. He has judged the major motion picture and TV award Competitions. He is assisted in his column by Sarah Halsey.

silvia lehrer's cooking column

"Kids can be very adventurous cooks," says Joan Cirillo, in her new cook book, The Complete Idiot's Guide to Cooking with Kids, Alpha Book, $16.95 paperback. She approaches cooking with kids by teaching them to play by the rules. She likens the effect to the different sports activities that kids may engage in. "There's no reason," she states, "why you can't approach cooking like that, that is teaching children the rules of the game which are all those safety concerns of parents."

The book is designed for parents to use with their children as a kitchen companion. Side bars with graphics are liberally sprinkled throughout the book which are fun for kids to read and at the same time helps them to get involved in the text. Recipes are accompanied by pictures of her young testers and include their candid comments, making the book delightfully kid friendly.

The book is divided into six parts. Some of the valuable lessons taught are how to get kids interested in food, how kids can relate to foods of other cultures when dining out and the joys of discovering food in fairy tales and stories. Sections such as "Kid-Proofing Your Kitchen," provides the basics, "Building Blocks of Cooking," covers the fundamentals such as the mechanics of reading recipes and proper mixing and measuring techniques. The recipe file in "Now You're Cooking" offers the reader many choices from Breakfast Bonanzas, Soups and Salads, Pasta and Pizza, Veggies and Sides, Snacktime, Delectable Desserts, The Bakers Rack and Holiday Happenings.

A valuable lesson for kids is to expose them to anyone in the family who enjoys cooking. When kids are around in the kitchen make an effort to include them, even if it's just stirring a sauce or hot oatmeal. Joan promises that the whole cooking idea will get into their bones, as it did for her young daughters, and that's the payoff.

ON-THE-RUN-FUN SMOOTHIE

An easy to make nutritious breakfast treat for kids on the run. The recipe tester is 13 year-old Sam Sadle. Adult supervision needed to use the blender.

Makes 3 cups

- 1 large ripe banana
- 1 cup nonfat milk
- 1/2 cup nonfat vanilla yogurt
- 1/2 serving protein powder
- 4 ice cubes

1. Peel the banana, break it in half and place it in the blender.
2. Add the milk, yogurt, and protein powder. Blend on low speed until combined.
3. Add the ice cubes and blend until smooth.
4. Pour into glasses and serve immediately.

PASTA FAGOLI

This hearty pasta and bean soup was tested by 15 year-old Julia Cooke. She writes, "a great soup on a cold day, good and comforting." Adult help needed at the stove, with can opener and ladling hot soup.

Makes 9 1/2 cups

- 2 large cloves garlic,
- 2 tablespoons good quality extra-virgin olive oil
- 1 (14 1/2 ounce) can premium diced, peeled tomatoes in juice (unopened)

- 1 (48-ounce) can fat-free chicken broth
- 2 cups ditalini or ditali pasta or another short tube pasta
- 1 (15 1/2 ounce) can chickpeas
- 4 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

1. Place the garlic cloves on a cutting board and cover them with wax paper. Clean the bottom of the tomato can and then smash the garlic cloves on the cutting board. Remove the paper skins from the garlic.

2. Heat the oil in the pot over medium-high heat for 2 minutes, add the garlic, and cook for 2 minutes.

3. Open the can of tomatoes and pour into the pot. Cook until small bubbles form and then continue to simmer for 3 minutes.

4. Pour in the chicken broth, pasta and chickpeas with their juice. Stir with the wooden spoon. Cover the pot and let the soup simmer for 30-35 minutes, stirring occasionally so the pasta doesn't stick to the pan. The soup is done when the flavors come together and the pasta is tender.

5. Remove the garlic cloves and ladle the soup into bowls. Serve hot and sprinkle a tablespoon of Parmesan cheese in each bowl.

CARAMEL APPLES FOR HALLOWEEN

I was delighted to find these timely caramel apples in Joan Cirillo's book. 14 year-old Colleen Wearn tested this recipe. Adult help needed throughout the recipe, especially at the stove and dipping apples.

Makes 5 apples

- 1 (14-ounce) package vanilla caramels (about 48 candies)
- 5 medium apples
- 1/2 cup granola, crushed to break up large chunks
- 1/4 cup coconut
- Butter for greasing
- 2 tablespoons water

1. Unwrap the caramels and put them in the saucepan.

2. Wash and dry the apples thoroughly with the paper towels and set them on a piece of waxed paper on the counter. Press a wooden stick into the stem end of each apple. Set a pot holder on the counter next to the apples.

3. In a small bowl, combine the granola and coconut, mix with a tablespoon, and set the mixture next to a pot holder.

4. Tear off another sheet of waxed paper large enough to hold the apples and grease it with butter. Set it aside, greased side up, next to bowl. Generously grease the wooden spoon and set it on top of the waxed paper.

5. Add 2 tablespoons water to the caramels and place the saucepan over low heat. Cook the caramels for about 15 minutes or until they melt and become smooth. (Stir the caramels with the greased spoon as they cook.) (Or see microwave method below.)

6. Use pot holder to remove the saucepan from the heat and place it on top of the pot holder on the counter. Watch not to burn yourself with the hot pot or the caramel.

7. Hold the apple by the stick and dip it as far as you can into the caramel mixture. Quickly flip the apple right side up to spread the caramel sauce, and then turn it upside down again. Alternatively, instead of flipping the apple use the wooden spoon to pour caramel on the surface of the apple. (If the caramel sauce hardens, reheat it on the stove.)

8. Place the apple on the piece of waxed paper with the stick pointing upward. Repeat the same process with each apple.

9. When you've finished the apples, slide the plate underneath the waxed paper so the apples are on the plate. Refrigerate for about an hour or until the coating is firm.

Microwave version: Follow steps 1 to 4. Put the caramels and 2 tablespoon water in a deep, microwave-safe bowl. Microwave on high for 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 minutes, stirring every minute. Proceed with steps 6 to 9.

Note: A complete equipment list is given with each recipe in the book and including all of the above.

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

RED/BAR TO OPEN LOCATION IN MANHATTAN Restaurateurs David Loewenberg, Kirk Basnight and Louis Ramirez will open red/bar restaurant in NYC this November at 339 E. 75th St., between 1st and 2nd Avenues. The new red/bar restaurant will be the sister restaurant to both red/bar brasserie in Southampton and the Beacon restaurant in Sag Harbor, which are owned and operated by business partners Loewenberg and Basnight. The executive chef will be Erik Nodeland, executive chef of red/bar brasserie in Southampton since its opening in June, '98. The new restaurant will feature French-inspired American cuisine and will serve dinner seven days a week, lunch on weekends and Sunday brunch.

MICROBREWERY DINNER AT THE CHEQUIT INN The Chequit Inn on Shelter Island (749-0018) is hosting a Microbrewery Beer Dinner on Saturday, October 14th. The dinner will feature five courses paired with selections from the Blue Point Brewery. The cost is $45 per person plus tax and gratuity. Call for reservations.

NEW FALL MENU ITEMS AT THE LAUNDRY The Laundry (324-3199) has added some new fall items to their menu. Look for new choices such as: grilled oyster mushrooms with fall arugula, shaved parmesan and rosemary oil; carpaccio of organic beets with warm goat cheese flax and black walnut vinaigrette; grilled Stonington red shrimp with sauce chien; Moonstone Beach, RI oysters on the half shell; and roasted sweet dumpling squash with heirloom shell beans and shiitake mushrooms.

SEATS STILL AVAILABLE FOR THE PLAZA CAFÉ'S OPUS ONE DINNER There are a limited number of seats still available for the special vintner dinner for the premier East Coast uncorking of the Opus One 1997 release at The Plaza Cafe in Southampton (283-9323). The dinner will consist of four-courses (plus dessert) and a mini-vertical tasting of the '84, '93 and '97 Opus One releases. The dinner will be held Sunday, October 15th at 7 p.m. For further information or reservations, call

Interior & EXTERIOR

Time To Plant Bulbs

As fall arrives, it is time to plant spring-flowering bulbs. I can't imagine a flower garden without spring bulbs. Wherever you decide to plant bulbs along walkways, meadows, beds, borders or in containers, here are a few basics to help you on your way.

You can search for the best quality bulbs in bulb catalogues or in a local garden center. Be aware that sometimes cheap bulbs are not the best deal. Inspect carefully for mildew spots on all bulbs while you are planting. Bulbs that are soft and have different colorations are no good and must be replaced.

Spring bulbs require good drainage. If your soil is heavy (clay), incorporate 25 to 30 percent organic material into the existing soil. The purpose of organic matter is to reduce soil compacting, aid drainage, increase air circulation and help retain proper moisture levels so that your bulbs will root and establish themselves faster. I like to dig in generous scoops of bone meal when planting bulbs, but the various fertilizer mixtures designed specifically for daffodils, tulips and other bulbs will suffice.

My absolute favorite tulip is "White Truimphator." A tall, lily flowered type with graceful stems and ivory white blossoms. It is excellent for mixed planting of shrubs and perennials. Daffodils, especially the tall, large varieties like "Ice Follies" and "Salome" can be difficult to integrate into mixed planting. They require a lot of space. Try planting daffodils in naturalistic drifts at the edge of woods or at the feet of large deciduous shrubs or trees.

You can plant small bulbs to make a lovely punctuation beneath the big bulbs and early season bloomers. Among the tulips, the bright red Tulipa Kaufmiana is a totally unexpected surprise. It blooms early and at six inches tall, fills the height gap between crocus and tall daffodils. The small Iris Reticulata rise no taller than the small tulips, with clean tubular stems and blue and yellow flowers. There are also several wonderful daffodils in the eight inch range such as "Jetfire" and "Tounding" that link the front and back of the bed.

Plant a small number of bulbs with a bulb planter. Sink the tool straight down into the soil. To plant a full bed, border or meadow, dig a trench. Place bulbs facing up in the trench according to your design. Replace and firm soil and water well. Spread a thin layer of mulch to keep moist. Try not to plant too many varieties and use them boldly avoiding the busy look that results from planting collections or mixtures. Don't hesitate to mass one single variety together, be bold!

EAST END FARMING WITH JOE GERGELA

Producers who have experienced crop losses or low production due to the excessive wet conditions or any other natural disaster should notify the Farm Service Agency at (631) 727-5666. We anticipate that Suffolk County will be declared eligible for emergency loan assistance due to crop damage and weather related losses.

Several weeks ago while in Washington D.C., I had a chance to visit with NY Agriculture Commissioner Nathan Rudgers to impress upon him the need to include Suffolk County if the Congress appropriates emergency disaster relief for NY State. Over 35 counties have already been declared disaster areas. Our damage came later (July) and was not originally included in the request to USDA by Governor Pataki. The apple industry and onion growers were especially hard hit from hail and excessive rain. The hail damage causes the small apple to grow with deformities, thereby making much of the crop unmarketable for fresh market. Much of this year's apple crop will go to cider and/or apple juice concentrate - if they can sell it. There is extreme competition from China and South America on apple juice concentrate. This is the second year in a row that the apple industry has had severe losses. The onion growers were hard hit from too much rain as were many of the other vegetable crops on Long Island. Keep in mind, when a natural disaster is declared, emergency loan money is available on a first come, first serve basis. It would be a good idea to document your losses with FSA in order to have a record that is reliable and verifiable.

A couple of other items of interest to the farm community - our good friend Bill Sanok, the Ag Program leader of Cornell Cooperative Extension of Suffolk County was awarded the Distinguished Service Award from the National Association of County Agricultural Agents in Mississippi in early August. About 2000 ag extension agents from around the country attend their annual meeting. We are all very proud of Bill, as he is deserving of such a distinguished award.

Another topic of interest, if you recall, back in July,

Long Island Farm Bureau had the honor of holding a forum for our members, and the community to meet U.S. Senate Candidate and First Lady of the United States Hillary Rodham Clinton. As a non partisan organization you can not just say that you are non partisan, you must perform that way. Actions speak louder than words. With that said, I am pleased to announce that the Republican candidate for U.S. Senate, 4 term Congressman from Brightwaters, Rick Lazio will be our guest at a similar forum October 17, 10:15 AM at Phil Schmitt's farm in Riverhead. This is an opportunity for area farmers and the general public to hear Rick's views on agricultural issues. Anyone interested in attending should call us at 631 727-3777 for more information. Right now, as everyone knows, it is a hell of a competitive race - too close to call. No matter the outcome, we will be postured to work with our next U.S. Senator.

Joseph Gergela, III is Executive Director, Long Island Farm Bureau

New Antique and Home Design Shop Opens

Devereux Atwell Ltd. is a charming Antiques and Home Design shop which just opened its doors at the East Hampton Antique Center, 251 Pantigo Road. Beyond the front store which now is waiting for a new resident, Martha Emanuel has created an enchanting environment in what is a small undiscovered cottage in the rear of the property.

Inside, Martha has showcased her merchandise in an interior-design setting. You'll find a beautiful selection of American and European antique furniture (ranging from 18th to early 20th century) and decorative items both new and old. "Since I've arranged the shop as if it were my own home, customers are able to visualize how a piece might look in their home and can purchase entire room settings" says Martha.

Martha loves to decorate and buy, and that is reflected in the beauty, quality and uniqueness of the merchandise. While she displays unusual and costly pieces, she also carries some items at a lower price point for the budget shopper. Everything in the store has been hand-picked and orchestrated by Martha down to the flower arrangements themselves. The cottage has an atmosphere of warmth, charm and hospitality, with fresh flowers, amber lights, fragrant candles and sachets.

An eclectic at heart, Martha also displays an array of items which she has designed by mixing old finds with new elements; such as architectural wrought iron pieces (circa 1880's) which have been fashioned into round table bases with glass tops, 19th century brass and irons which have been converted into elegant lamps and new pillows made with antique fabrics and trims. There are also oriental rugs, silver, china, lighting, mirrors, and gift items as well as unusual pieces like hat blocks which recently found their way back to a milliner's shop to be used again. On occasion, she will also have some old linens and some vintage clothes.

The store offers an interior design service that can help you select fabrics and new furniture as well as antiques that do not make their way into the regular store inventory. She is also planning special seminars to help clients become more knowledgeable about antiques and decorating.

Come and visit or call Martha to arrange an appointment. She'll be happy to greet you. Worth the visit, you will soon have Devereux Atwell at the top of your shopping list. Enjoy!

The Eyes Have It...

One of the problems all women seem to face at one time or another is the dark circles or puffiness under the eyes. Overuse of concealers and foundations, especially done incorrectly, tend to accentuate the area and draw more attention to it.

There is no real set solution to the problem, only quick fixes. It all boils down to creating an illusion with makeup. Puffiness can be reduced to a certain extent by having your eyebrows properly aligned and shaped and the use of great eye makeup can significantly make the problem appear far less than it really is.

At one time, every makeup artist knew the best way to reduce this puffiness was with a hemorrhoid ointment. But alas, the FDA stepped in and made them remove the ingredient that took away that morning look from the eyes. People still purchase it in the hopes that it will work, but it doesn't.

Dark circles and puffiness are two separate problems. Dark circles are a vascular problem caused by dilated blood vessels under the eyes. Some women are more predisposed to the puffs, sometimes due to heredity, while others can look black or blue under the eye.

Sometimes this is caused by congestion or allergies. Since the skin is so thin under the eyes, any darkness easily shows through. A good concealer is your best bet. If you have the black and blue vein problem, by all means stay away from blue and green eye shadows.

Don't overuse mascara and use one that is waterproof. Most cosmetic companies put them out but a good, inexpensive one used by professional makeup artists (even though they endorse the more expensive ones) is the Cover Girl Waterproof Mascara. Brown/Black works best for just about everyone.

Under eye puffiness is a different problem. There are two causes of this, retention of fluid and fat. Puffiness results when a fat pad that cushions the eye begins to pull away from the bone of the lower area and begins to sag due to age. Heredity, once again, also plays a part in this. Excess salt can make the matter worse. Water tends to redistribute to the head when we sleep. Nothing like seeing your face the next morning after that great Chinese dinner!

So we need to work on less salts and reducing excess before bed. Keep the area around the eye hydrated. This can be achieved without looking greasy by choosing the right formula for your skin. There are no oil glands

In this area so we need to keep it hydrated artificially. When you put on your concealer, try mixing a little cream in with it that has been formulated for use around the eye. Lancome has an excellent product for this area, Vitabolic Dark Circle Eye Treatment. You want to keep the illusion subtle and this cream mixed in with your favorite concealer will do just that.

You can also try one of the colored under eye colors by Physicians Formula (www.physiciansformula.com). Cover the blue veins with the yellow and then apply your concealer. Physicians Formula offers these concealing colors in cake, cream and stick formulas. You may see that you don't need to even apply cover-up or foundation over them.

Joey NY (www.joeyny.com) has a wonderful product, "Calm and Correct." It reduces the appearance of dark circles under the eyes as well as spider veins on the face. Visible results in one to eight weeks. It can be purchased at Nordstrom, Bergdorf Goodman, and select Saks Fifth Avenue Stores. Estee Lauder "Smoothing Cream Concealer" is another one to try. It is good for covering up skin blemishes as well as under the eye. On the budget end...Maybeline Cover Stick (under $10) is a good choice along with Prescriptives Camouflage Cream (under $10).

Don't forget the Dermablend line. They are known for covering up birthmarks, scars and a number of other skin imperfections superbly. You may need to mix two shades to get the desired effect. Remember to test all products in natural daylight. The lights in the stores are not at all what will be seen outside.

If you have puffs under the eye...remember to think Illusion. Dark recedes and light brings forward. Use something that matches the shade of your foundation. Don't go and use white eye shadows under or above your eye. If you wear glasses, that too reflects light and may cast unwanted highlights on the area. Under the puff, with a light hand, you can apply a slightly lighter color. Perhaps a little darker on top will make the puff recede.

Experiment. Go easy on face powder in this area also. Makeup will seep right into any lines with powder as a base. Using small brushes rather than the fingers to apply and then smudged with a cosmetic sponge is the trick...and blend, blend, blend. fading and feathering out at the edges into the area so no lines of demarcation is visible.

With a little practice...using natural daylight whenever possible, you too will be able to achieve the perfect cover-up for your eye area.

Next column...Blushes and Eye Shadow.

HEALTH, SPORTS & FITNESS

This column focuses on eating well and thereby being healthy, as our meal is everything. By consuming what you truly want to ingest at every meal, you can live a happier life. I am a person who has discovered what foods I am passionate about and wish to help the reader by sharing some recipes. I have found that the healthiest diet is vegetarian while including some dairy and fish. Here are two recipes to get you started.

Adam's Exotic Salad For Two

half head lettuce
one onion
one and half tomato one half avocado
four slivers tofu
three tablespoons goats cheese

handful baby carrots handful sprouts
a quarter head of spinach

Toss the salad and add some olive oil and vinegar.
Have some green tea on the side.

Here is a healthy vegetarian dessert:
Two scoops soy ice cream or rice ice cream
Handful macademia nuts
Handful white chocolate chips

You should be able to find these items at your local supermarket; if not, improvise. Enjoy! Eating well will help you be more mindful during the day.

October is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month

Did you know...

Breast cancer is the leading cause of cancer deaths among women ages 40-59. It is the leading cancer site among American women and is second only to lung cancer in cancer deaths. During the year 2000, 182,800 women will be diagnosed with breast cancer, and 40,800 women will die of breast cancer.

The most proven and significant risk factors are being female and getting older. The majority of women with breast cancer have no known significant family history or other known risk factors. Only 5-10% of breast cancers are due to heredity. Most women who are diagnosed with breast cancer survive the disease. If detected early, breast cancer is a curable disease.

Early detection and treatment offer the best chance currently available for surviving breast cancer. The following steps are recommended:

- Annual screening mammography beginning by age 40 and continuing throughout your life.
- Clinical breast examination at least every 3 years beginning at age 20 and annually after age 40.
- Monthly breast self-examination beginning by age 20.

POLICE BLOTTER

A Southampton woman was arrested and charged with criminal contempt, a misdemeanor, for allegedly staring at another woman. It seems that the gazed upon gal had an order of protection against the uninvited onlooker, Sandra R. Morgan, 40, stemming from an August incident involving verbal and physical harassment. According to police, Morgan went to the victim's place of employment, and stared at her through a window. Morgan was released on $100 bail.

An antique bronze horse, one of a pair, was stolen from the front of a house on Sagg Pond Court in Sagaponack. Police have no leads on the rustler who made off with the three-foot tall statue. The statuesque steed was valued at $2,500.

Mill Road in Noyac was the scene of two break-ins. The first residence was entered through an unlocked window. The interloper looked around, took food from the kitchen, left juice cartons on the bedroom window sill, and crumbs and Pop Tart wrappers throughout the house. The only missing items were some keys.

The second house broken into was entered through the back door. The intruders used a key that was hidden, apparently not too well. This time, the burglars rearranged some things and used the bathroom.

A Bridgehampton man lent his 1986 Toyota Tercel to his son to go to a parole hearing. Since then, he has not seen his son, or his car. The duped dad told police that the car, and his son are probably headed for Florida.

Also in Bridgehampton, police found a car that had run off of Brick Kiln Road, and into a tree. The airbags had deployed, and the occupants had departed. The license plates had also departed. Police were able to trace the car to a woman in East Hampton, but were unable to contact her.

Another case of motorist mayhem broke occurred in Montauk. Kimberly Cobert left the keys in her Ford Escort while it was parked in front of her residence above Liar's Saloon on Star Island Drive. Somebody took her car for a joyride, and thought the escort would make a good submarine, driving it into Lake Montauk. The soggy Ford was found just off of the Star Island Causeway.

Somebody used a stolen credit card number to access a pornographic web site. The card belongs to a Springs man with the unfortunate name of Stephen Dickman. The smut surfers racked up a $80 tab on Dickman's account.

Another man, apparently without internet access, was seen standing naked next to his gray Nissan, engaged in the act of self satisfaction. The masturbator was spotted on Cold Spring Road in Sebonac, and is described as 5'10" tall with dark hair and a medium build.

In the bad driver department, Steven Joseph Houdek, 44, of Brooklyn Center, Minnesota, allegedly hit a 15 year-old student about to get on a school bus on Route 25 in Orient. According to police, Houdek allegedly tried to pass the stopped school bus on the right. The Minnesota man told police that he was tired and the flashing red lights confused him.

Also on the North Fork, Erika Tappen, 28, of Jamesport, was allegedly driving on Route 25 in Mattituck with a suspended license, no registration, no insurance, and was allegedly drunk for good measure. She was released on bail.

MORE DUCK FACTS

Dear Dan,

Want to tell you about the error in your Big Duck story of most recent. The Big Duck is owned by the Country of Suffolk and is operated by the Friends for Long Island's Heritage, the citizens support group for the museums operated by the Counties of Nassau and Suffolk. Where you got the notion the State of New York was involved, we don't know. It would be a good idea if you corrected the article for the sake of correctness for your readers.

Are you familiar with the "Big Duck Quack Off" and "Big Duck Christmas Lighting" we have every year? Also, did you see our ads in your paper this spring? Thanks for all your coverage in the past and of course in the future. Looking forward to hearing from you.

GEORGE W. WILL SAVE US?

Dear Dan,

There is only one man who can save the East End from the impending doom of over-development. That man is George W. Bush. If he is elected President of the United States and swiftly runs the economy and the country's morale into the ground, as his father did, development on the East End would slow to a crawl. The stock market would experience a major correction, and the price of real estate would drop to an affordable level. I'm sure there would even be a calming effect on weekend traffic. We must put an end to this peace time prosperity if we are to catch our breath and save our open space. Sure, Al Gore is the true environmental candidate, but he will likely keep the country on a prosperous path, which will mean the end of Eastern Long Island as we know it. The downside of electing George W. Bush is that our kids will grow up with a gun in one hand and a cigarette in the other as the conservative Republican bows to the lobbyists. All in all, another Bush administration is a small price to pay for the ecological benefits of a collapsed economy. If we ever needed a fiscally inept Republican president, the time is now.

SOUTHAMPTON HELPS MDA

Dear Dan,

I want to take this opportunity to thank the Southampton community for their phenomenal support during our "Most Wanted" Lock-Up to benefit the local chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA).

The event which was held on September 28, pledged more than $27,000! MDA would like to extend a very special thanks to our Lock-Up participants, as well as the generous contributors, who dedicated their time and efforts to raise funds for MDA's local patient services programs. I would also like to thank the hosting location, John Duck Jr.'s and their supportive staff for their volunteer support on the day of the event.

Transportation was generously donated by: Hampton Jitney and Vantastic Transport. Thanks!

It has been proven once again that your community cares enough to make a difference. The dollars you raised translate into direct local patient services. Research and patient services are being conducted at St. Charles Hospital. From summer camp and wheelchair repair to research and support groups, you have made a huge difference in the fight against neuromuscular disease.
